POLICE MORALE SEEN BREAKING ON BURKE FIGHT

Board Refuses to Allow Chief of Detectives to Retire.

RANK AND FILE URGES GLASSFORD CENSURE

Demands Association Call on Him to Quit; Veterans Seek to Calm Revolt.

A virtual state of rebellion against the regime of Superintendent Pelham D. Glassford exists in the Police Department, because of his attempted ouster of Chief of Detectives Frank S. W. Burke, who yesterday again emerged victorious in his fight to remain in his post when the Retiring Board refused to allow him to leave active service.

The summary action of the police head against the popular detective chief has caused widespread dissatisfaction in the ranks, it was learned. Informal indignation meetings are being held in precinct houses and members of the police association are clamoring for a special meeting to vote nonconfidence in Gen. Glassford and to demand his resignation.

Older heads in the Police Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and in the police association are trying to stem the tide of revolt against the police chief.

Morale at Low Ebb.

"The morale of this department is at the lowest point in its history," a high police officer said. "A man doesn't know from one day to the next just what position he will occupy. We are trying to save some semblance of morale from the wreckage."

Before the Police and Firemen's Retiring Board, Inspector Burke said: "The reason I applied for retirement is that I was given the option of asking for retirement or being retired. I elected to apply for retirement."

"Is that the only reason you applied?" he was asked.

"Yes."

Dr. John A. Reed, secretary of the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons, told the board that the physicians found Inspector Burke "physically fit to continue active duty."

Board Acts Quickly.

It took the board less than five minutes to issue its decision refusing the application, and recommending that he continue in active duty. By this action, the board placed the question of Inspector Burke's future status directly before the District Commissioners.

The recommendation of Gen. Glassford that the detective chief be demoted to inspector and lose his rank of assistant superintendent will come before the Commissioners Tuesday. The recommendation for Inspector Burke's demotion went to the District Building yesterday.

The widespread protest against Gen. Glassford's regime is that the rank and file men question the right of a commanding officer with such brief police service as Gen. Glassford has, to shatter peremptorily the rank of men who have worked for years to attain their positions.

Of the 1,300 men in the department, approximately 500 have learned the essentials of police work from Inspector Burke, who was in charge of the police school for two years and

Col. Robins' Wife White House Guest

She Believes Bootleggers Caused Her Husband's Disappearance.

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Raymond Robins, wife of the prohibition leader and philanthropist who vanished several weeks ago while supposedly en route to the White House, yesterday came to the executive mansion as an overnight guest of the President and Mrs. Hoover.

Col. Robins was a personal friend of the President and several weeks before his disappearance had spent a week-end at Mr. Hoover's Rapidan camp in the Virginia mountains. Mrs. Robins arrived at the White House shortly before 5 p. m., coming directly from the train.

Federal agents, set in search of Robins after White House aids called attention to his failure to keep an appointment with the President, lost track of him after he had checked out of his New York club, leaving a forwarding address at a Washington hotel. Friends of Robins reported they saw him on the streets of Chicago, but he was never found. Mrs. Robins advanced the theory that he might have met with foul play from bootleggers who, she said, had threatened him for his activities against them.

JOB SERVICE FACES 2-MONTH FURLOUGH

Action Is Imminent Unless Deficiency Funds Are Voted in December.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

The far-flung field staff of the United States Employment Service, now coping with peak demands for jobs in every State in the Union, faces a two-month payless furlough if deficiency funds are not forthcoming at the December session of Congress.

While the Labor Department has delayed ordering the cut, fearful of hindering strides made by the service in combating unemployment, it was learned last night that the furlough is imminent.

The Labor Department was one of the five executive branches of Government most seriously hit by appropriation slashes, and the Employment Service was the most seriously affected of any labor unit.

The Commerce Department alone of the five has taken steps to put administrative furloughs into execution, and here they would not amount to more than a 20-day maximum.

The 60-day furlough would be in addition to the 30-day payless leave made mandatory under the economy bill.

It would affect some 450 trained employment service workers, strategically situated in Washington, and at 150 branch offices in the various States. It would further affect 350 State and municipal employment agencies cooperating with the employment service.

While it has not been established that any of these agencies would be forced to shut down because of the order, the furlough would curtail activities on a wide front at a time when they are most needed.

None of the employment service workers has a Civil Service status. Two of its offices are located in Washington, three in Maryland, at Baltimore and Cumberland, and three in Virginia, at Alexandria, Roanoke and Norfolk.

In the fifteen-month period after the service was reorganized in April, 1931, the unit found jobs for 1,276,550 workers. Through cooperation

French Ship Rammed In Fog Off Germany

Hamburg, Germany, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—In a dense fog the South American liner Caparcona rammed the French steamer Agen in the Elbe Estuary at 5 a. m. today.

The Agen was anchored when the Caparcona struck here. A great gash was cut in the side of the French vessel and water poured in, causing a dangerous list so that the ship had to be beached. The Caparcona was only slightly damaged and was berthed at Hamburg.

U. S. WILL SEEK ACCORD IN NAVY CUT AT LONDON

Norman Davis to Meet Sir John Simon Today on Hoover Plan.

ARMS PARLEY SUCCESS MAY HINGE ON ACTION

Hope for Compromise Held Here; Castle Outlines Scope of Program.

(United Press.)

An attempt to compromise the conflicting American and British views on naval sections of the Hoover disarmament plan is scheduled for today in London, it was learned yesterday at the State Department.

Norman H. Davis, U. S. delegate to the disarmament conference, will meet with Sir John Simon and admiralty experts. Rear Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn will act as American technical advisor.

While the Anglo-American conversations are Davis' primary mission, he will be on hand to represent the United States if the London conference on Germany's demand for arms equality materializes. It now appears to be doomed because of French opposition.

The Davis-Simon conversations are regarded here as of primary importance. Officials believe there must be an Anglo-American accord on navies before the Hoover plan can be accepted generally. Thus the success of the entire disarmament conference may hinge on agreement between the two chief naval powers.

Compromise Is Possible.

Davis goes to London with no hard-and-fast instructions or plans. He has in mind, however, a possible compromise which he discussed with undersecretary of State William R. Castle, Jr., while in this country recently.

The British-American conflict on the Hoover plan grows out of the fundamental difference in the naval needs of the two countries. Britain wants a large number of small ships to protect its many trade routes and dominions. Long cruising radius, an attribute of large ships, is not essential, for Britain has naval bases scattered throughout the world. The United States, with few naval bases, wants fewer ships, but large ones of wide cruising radius.

Mr. Hoover proposed that naval

"Conscience Fund" Gets $4,000 in Day

Treasury Is Given Largest Amount in Years; Began in 1811.

(Associated Press.)

A $4,000 contribution was added yesterday to the Treasury's "conscience fund." Paid in bills cut in two—half delivered yesterday and half today—the contribution was the largest single amount received in years. An accompanying pencilled memo said only: "For the conscience fund." The bills were mailed from Washington, D. C.

The first contribution to the conscience fund, $250, was received in 1811. The largest amount contributed in one year was $54,923 in 1916. In 1929 the unidentified contributions amounted to $20,929 and in 1930 and 1931 dropped to less than $6,000 each.

In all, approximately $600,000 has been received from unidentified persons apparently seeking to pay the Government money they believed they owed. The money, while entered in the conscience fund, really goes into the general fund and is spent.

Baby Found On Steps as Guests Leave

Strolling onto his front porch to say farewell to departing guests last midnight, Edward Webb, 4611 Davenport street northwest, found another guest on the front steps. The late arrival was a baby about a month old.

The startled host picked up the baby and carried it into the house and summoned police from the Eighth Precinct. The baby was taken to the station house, where it became the center of attention while the bluecoats waited for a more experienced baby handler to arrive from the Women's Bureau to take the child to Children's Hospital.

The baby was dressed in expensive clothes of white material trimmed in pink and was wrapped in a white, pink-trimmed blanket. All of its accoutrements appeared expensive.

A. A. A. IS CENSURED BY STATE OFFICIALS

Charges of Intimidation in Traffic Safety Work Made at Conference.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

An official censure of the American Automobile Association for attempting to "intimidate State motor vehicle officials" was voted unanimously at the closing session of the Eastern Conference of Motor Vehicle Administrators here yesterday. The conference represents twenty States, the District of Columbia and the Province of Ontario. The resolution in which the A. A. A. was accused of harassing and obstructing officials in the administration of regulations designed to reduce traffic accidents was offered by T. McCall Frazier, Virginia Motor Vehicle Commissioner.

A second rap at the American Automobile Association's allegedly obstructive policy was taken when the State officials went on record in favor of the joint Save-a-Life campaign by the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia. Pointing out that this undertaking, which calls for official inspection of the safety equipment of all registered motor vehicles, has been threatened with injunction proceedings by local A. A. A. officials, Benjamin G. Eynon, of Pennsylvania, asked the conference to vote its indorsement of the campaign as a sound contribution to street and highway safety. The vote on is matter also was unanimous.

Mr. Frazier's resolution of censure was direct and pointed in its references. It asked that the conference "condemn the actions of certain officials of the American Automobile Association for attempting to intimidate State officials" in the enforcement of laws in which members of the motor club were affected.

Accusing the A. A. A. heads of an unending succession of efforts to

Reds' Ambassador In London Recalled

Believed Needed in Russia to Help Peg Value of Ruble.

Moscow, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—The recall of G. Y. Sokolnikov, Ambassador to Great Britain since 1929, was officially announced tonight.

The fact that he is credited with stabilization of the ruble in 1924 when he was commissar of finance has aroused speculation that his return may have something to do with the fiscal problem which faces the government in the form of sharp reduction in the purchasing power of the ruble during recent months.

He will be succeeded in London by I. M. Maisky, at present Minister to Finland. Another diplomatic change was announced at the same time. D. I. Kouraky, Ambassador to Italy, will retire. V. P. Potemkin, Minister to Greece, will succeed him, and Y. C. Davtian, former Minister to Persia, will go to Greece.

GOV. ROOSEVELT HOLDS HOOVER PLAN TOO LATE

Glad President Agrees That There Is Need in Nation.

'PORK BARREL' TYPE OF CAMPAIGN SEEN

Renews "New Deal" Pledge in Radio Address on Return to Office.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Gov. Roosevelt today declared he was "happy" that President Hoover in his Des Moines speech "agrees with me upon the necessity of restoring prosperity to our agricultural interests, our cattle interests, our mining interests, as an essential adjunct to restoring general business prosperity." The comment was Mr. Roosevelt's first reply to the Iowa speech of the President delivered on last Tuesday night.

"This doctrine," continued the Democratic presidential nominee in a radio address to luncheon meetings of the Roosevelt Business and Professional Men's League held at many points throughout the country, "I have been preaching ever since the day I was nominated, and I am happy that the President finally has come to agree with me on this point when he says:

"'Every thinking citizen knows that the farmer, the worker and the business man are in the same boat, and must all come ashore together.'"

Renews "New Deal" Pledge.

Mr. Roosevelt added:

"I am glad also that he thereby admits that the farmer, the worker and the business man are now all of them very much at sea."

The nominee, talking into a microphone in his private office in the State capitol, described his own program as a "new deal" which he said "is, in plain English, for a changed concept of the duty and responsibility of government toward economic life."

Mr. Roosevelt returned to his Statehouse office today for the first time since he left it on September 12 to begin his Western campaign swing, which in three weeks carried him into twenty States.

Mr. Roosevelt made the speech during a brief pause in dealing with State affairs.

A little earlier he had conferred with State officials regarding the possibility of setting up a marketing system for farm products in the State that would be able to finance itself to the degree necessary to allow it to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Ritchie and Wilbur To Debate Oct. 17

Merits of Opposing Platforms Will Be Subject at Chicago U.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—A debate on the election issues and the merits of the Democratic and Republican platforms between Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland and Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, at the Northwestern University, in Chicago on October 17, was announced tonight at the governor's office.

Gov. Ritchie said he agreed to present the Democratic views at the personal invitation of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the party's presidential nominee, following a long-distance telephone call to Albany, N. Y. Melvin A. Traylor, at Chicago, is arranging the details. The engagement will start Gov. Ritchie's speaking campaign in the States along the Great Lakes.

TAMMANY DROPS WALKER FOR MAYOR ON OWN PLEA; SURROGATE O'BRIEN NAMED

Former City Head Acts for 'Good Of Party.'

Curry Again Bows to Roosevelt and Smith.

Madison Square Garden, New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Surrogate John P. O'Brien tonight was nominated for mayor of New York by the Democratic city convention after it had heard a dramatic message from James J. Walker, aboard an ocean liner in mid-Atlantic, removing his name from consideration.

"I request that my name be withheld from the convention," Walker's radiogram said, "and this decision is based solely on my willingness to put the interests of the party above my personal desires."

The renomination of Walker, who resigned in the midst of ouster hearings before Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, was vigorously opposed by the State's chief executive, now the Democratic presidential candidate and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

O'Brien Friend of Smith.

Early this afternoon it was authoritatively stated in Democratic circles that Walker's name would not be offered to the convention. Walker's radiogram came to John F. Curry, Tammany leader, after this was made known. O'Brien is a personal friend of Smith.

Earlier in the week Smith and Roosevelt had won a victory over Curry when he capitulated after opposing the nomination of the present lieutenant governor, Herbert H. Lehman, for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

The exchange of radiograms between Walker and Curry revealed that the Tammany chief and John H. McCooey, Brooklyn leader, had offered Walker the [illegible] opposition.

Walker's Words Cheered.

"I know the people of my native city share your confidence, because my 23 years in public life does not record a single instance of disloyalty to my constituents," said Walker's message, which brought applause from the more than 20,000 delegates.

"This record was proved after a searching investigation which amounted to an inquisition.

"My love for New York City is universally known, and I have a justifiable pride in my six and a half years of administration as its mayor. That administration was the most constructive in the city's history.

"I know I could be reelected by another overwhelming plurality. But is that the only thing to be considered by one who has a profound appreciation of the support he has heretofore received from his party?

"I can not see how I could campaign without reciting the reasons for my resignation, and without daily reminding the public of the unfair nature of the hearings conducted by the governor of our State, as declared in the decision of Supreme Court Justice Staley, and you know I would not pussyfoot about it.

"For Good of Party."

"This, in my opinion, would do the Democratic ticket no good. Much as I feel aggrieved by the treatment I have received, I am not one of those who thinks he is bigger than his party. So I shall content myself for the time being to stand upon my record, with its irrefutable evidence, which will stand the test of time and assaults for political expediency, that I have never failed to fulfill any and every trust reposed in me.

"Notwithstanding the disadvantage of conveying my thoughts to you from such a distance, I am sure you who know the facts will understand how I feel. Rather than jeopardize the hopes of Democracy in the Nation,

INSULL SURRENDERS AND SLEEPS IN JAIL

Former Operating Chief of Vast Utility Combine Held by Canada.

Barrie, Ontario, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—Martin J. Insull, former operating chief of the $2,000,000,000 Insull utilities chain, slept tonight on a narrow cot in a tiny cell on the second floor of the aged Greystone Jail of Simcoe County here, awaiting extradition to Chicago, where he will face larceny and embezzlement charges in connection with the failure of the Insull interests.

Haggard and worn, he surrendered to authorities at 9:30 p. m. on advice of his attorneys, in a prearranged meeting at the little two-story red brick home of Judge Dudley Holmes, of Simcoe County. Canadian officers placed him under arrest, a court was convened in the dimlit little front parlor, and in a hurried 20-minute hearing he was remanded to jail for eight days to permit arrival of extradition papers.

Hearing was set for October 14. If extradition papers have not then arrived he will again appear before

New R. F. C. Loans Mean 2,500 Jobs

Western Public Works Will Be Financed by Funds From Government.

(Associated Press.)

The Reconstruction Corporation yesterday agreed to make three self-liquidating loans, which it said should furnish approximately 2,500 men with jobs.

All the loans were granted for Western projects. The largest was $5,784,000 to the Middle Rio Grande Flood Control District, to be used on a project designed to hold the Rio Grande in check and protect Albuquerque, N. Mex., and other cities from floods.

Ogden, Utah, and Prescott, Ariz., were granted loans for increasing the capacity of their water-supply systems. Ogden was given $645,620 and Prescott $50,000. In each case bonds on the projects will be purchased by the corporation.

In making the loans public, the corporation said, "other self-liquidating loans will be announced by the corporation as quickly as legal and engineering snags can be removed."

PRESIDENT IS URGED TO EXTEND TOURING

Final Decisions Deferred as Congratulations on Speech in Des Moines Arrive.

(Associated Press.)

Back at his desk after a political swing across six States, President Hoover yesterday considered plans for future campaign travels, but held in abeyance any final decisions.

Some of the President's friends are urging him to carry a militant campaign across the country and along the Pacific Coast. Others have suggested that he go once more into the Midwest, possibly to Ohio, Indiana or Minnesota, and also along the Atlantic Seaboard.

Mr. Hoover's campaign managers weeks ago said he would make three addresses, two in the West or Midwest and one in the East, and neither they nor the President have spoken officially of any expansion beyond these plans.

One of the Chief Executive's secretaries, Theodore Joslin, told newspapermen yesterday there was "no comment to be made upon the President's plans at this time."

This afternoon at 3:15 o'clock Mr. Hoover is to deliver a radio address sponsored by the women's division of the Republican national committee as part of a "Hoover Day" celebration. He plans to speak also before the opening session of the American Bar Association convention next Wednesday night, and to participate in the cornerstone laying of the new United States Supreme Court Building next Thursday.

At intervals throughout yesterday—after his special train arrived in the National Capital at 7 a. m.—Mr. Hoover received congratulations upon

Two Fort Myer Soldiers Hunted as Fugitives

Two Fort Myer, Va., soldiers, one described as "a dangerous man," were being sought early today in the wooded section adjacent to the Army post. They escaped late yesterday from a prison camp.

Police in several States and the District were asked to be on the lookout for the fugitives. Their names were given as Edward C. Mitchell, 34, and Thomas Smith, colored. Smith was classed as "dangerous." He is supposed to have a wife living at 2623 Virginia avenue northwest. Both men wore denim suits and campaign hats.

Burroughs Citizens to Fight For Cupola on High School

Association "Will Go to White House If Necessary" to Win Restoration of Tower on Taft Junior Eliminated on Plea of Economy.

Determination to have the cupola eliminated from plans for the new Taft Junior High School restored "if it means going to the White House to do it," was voiced by the Burroughs Citizens Association last night.

The association is being backed in its fight, which will be taken first to the District Commissioners, by the Fine Arts Commission, it was revealed. A letter from the commission, made public last night, stated that "the elimination of the cupola for the sake of economy is like cutting off the arm or leg of a man and has had an unfortunate result on the appearance of the building."

The commission pointed out that it is endeavoring to preserve a style in public buildings selected by Washington and Jefferson, and that if future plans are changed for the sake of economy that an unfortunate predicament would result.

Blame for elimination of the cupola is placed on the District Engineer Commissioner by the Burroughs Association. Raymond L. Gilbert, chairman of the committee appointed to investigate the change in building plans, declared that the Engineer Commissioner has taken a purely materialistic view of the whole matter, ignoring sentiment and the wishes of citizens of the kind of building desired.

The association voted to request

WHO WILL MANAGE THE NATS?

The Washington Post can not answer this question. Neither can any one else with the exception of Clark Griffith, the owner of the club.

But The Washington Post today offers the baseball fans of the Capital an opportunity to express their opinions as to who should succeed Walter Johnson as leader of the 1933 club.

Several members of the Washington team have been mentioned. A number of prominent managers in both leagues are "unofficially" entered in the race for the job. Each fan has his own idea of who might bring a pennant to the Capital. Turn to the sport section today and find a ballot on which to send in your selection for manager. From the results of this vote Griff may get an idea which will lead to a world series here next fall. Vote today.

Alexandria Attorney Cited By Court in Divorce Tangle

R. B. Washington, Son of Last Male Member of Line Born at Mount Vernon, Must Answer Disbarment Charges Monday.

Attorney Richard B. Washington, of Alexandria, has been cited to appear in the corporation court next Monday morning at 10 o'clock, to "show cause, if any he can, why his license to practice law should not be revoked or suspended because of the malpractice and misconduct alleged." Mr. Washington is the son of Lawrence Washington, the last male member of the line born at Mount Vernon.

The charge is based on an affidavit made by Neal O'Leary, who filed suit for divorce in Alexandria, and who is under indictment here for alleged perjury in connection with the filing of the suit. O'Leary was brought to this city from New York, and is in jail pending his trial, as he has been unable to give bond in the sum of $2,000.

Following the filing of the affidavit by O'Leary, the rule was referred to the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia, and Chief Justice Preston W. Campbell, of that court, designated Judge William A. Moncure, of the chancery court of Richmond, and Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of Arlington County, judge of the courts of the Sixteenth Judicial Circuit, to sit with Judge William F. Woolls, of this city, to hear the case.

Commonwealth's Attorney Albert V. Bryan stated last night that this case will have no effect on other cases in Alexandria in recent years, unless it

IRRITATED VETERANS STORM B.E.F. DOORS

Convention Closes After Stormy Session; Fight on Waters Likely.

Uniontown, Pa., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Prepared to carry on as a national organization with a unit in every community, the Bonus Expeditionary Force adjourned tonight with an eye to Washington, where a committee will present the "demands" written by the first general convention.

In another stormy session in their warehouse "hall," the delegates elected George Kleinholz, of Portland, Oreg., as vice commander and assistant to Commander W. W. Waters, who headed the bonus forces encamped in Washington last July. Waters himself was reelected last Tuesday when a speech attacking him precipitated an uproar ending in his election. The next convention will be in Chicago, early in July, 1933.

Other officers elected are Hoke Smith, Bradford County, Fla., national field officer; George Anthony, Camp Huska, near Chicago, national contact officer; H. C. Failey, Seattle, national adjutant, and John W. Rankin, Uniontown, national finance officer.

The organization's platform calls for departments in every State, with units in towns and cities. The demands adopted by the convention yesterday asking "public recognition" from the President and Congress, may be carried to Washington in a day or two by a committee of ten, headed by Hoke Smith, national field officer.

Groups of disgruntled veterans today stormed barricaded doors of the warehouse where the delegates met after they had been barred because they arrived after balloting for officers had begun. They pounded the doors with their fists and clubs and shouted defiance to guards who had instructions to keep out all the tardy ones and others without credentials. Order finally was restored when some of the men were admitted and others dispersed.

The convention itself was thrown into noisy confusion over dozens of caucuses shouted from the floor without permission of the chair. After Steinholz had been elected vice commander, the convention recessed for caucuses amid shouts of "steam roller" and "bought off."

Huddled in groups and squatting on the floor, some even assembling outside in the drizzle, the various State units "talked politics" all day.

Methods of procedure plunged the delegates into one outburst after another. It finally was agreed the national staff officers would be elected by ballot. Bits of torn paper served as the ballots and these were deposited in a box held by a delegate selected by the convention.

Hoke Smith, the field commander, proposed a national policy, which the convention adopted, as follows:

"For support of honest persons in both parties and against dishonesty and graft in both parties.

"To support congressional candidates in favor of just veterans legislation and vigorously opposed to congressional candidates who oppose just legislation.

"No third party prior to November 8, 1932.

"One hundred per cent opposed to Herbert Hoover."

The convention approved a 50 cent annual fee. Those who can not afford the fee are to be "taken care of" by their units.

Two men who died after the disorders in Washington in July, Hushka and Carlson, were named past commanders and resolutions of sympathy sent to their families.

Kiwanians to Back New Boys' Club

Organization to Be Aid for St. John's Orphanage; Darlington Speaks.

Sponsorship of a Boys Club in the interest of the St. John's Episcopal Orphanage, at 1922 F street, has been decided upon by the Washington Kiwanis Club, it was announced at the weekly luncheon meeting at the Hotel Raleigh yesterday.

Kiwanian Frank L. Peckham has been named chairman of a committee that will draft the by-laws and purposes of the new club, the formation of which is in conformity with one of the six objects of Kiwanis boys' and girls' work. Other members of the committee follow: Vice chairmen, Frank T. Mitchell and Martin T. Wiegand; members: William F. Smith, C. H. Pardoe, Col. Claude Jones, Frank E. Johnson, Dr. H. S. Huffman, Dr. David L. Maxwell and Kemper Mohler.

Thomas D. Darlington, of Wilmington, Del., who is attending the National Safety Congress, was the principal speaker, taking for his subject, "Safety, a High Order of Neighborliness."

BURROUGHS CITIZENS TO FIGHT FOR CUPOLA

the next Congress for an appropriation to build one of the proposed new wings of the Taft School so that it might serve as a temporary overflow for the John Burroughs School. Transfer of any children from the Burroughs School to either the Langdon or the Woodridge Schools against the wishes of parents will be firmly opposed, it was decided.

The association also voted to oppose the construction of any more classrooms south of Rhode Island avenue until the needs of the territory north of Rhode Island avenue "have been adequately cared for." Recommendation will be made to the Board of Education that "earnest consideration" be given a new five-year building program for the territory now served by the Brookland, Bunker Hill, Crosby-Noyes, Burroughs, Langdon and Woodridge Schools.

Ire of the association was recently aroused because of the transfer of 26 children from the Burroughs to the Woodridge School. The association charged that in being transferred the children "were being used as pawns in a political contest." They were returned to the Burroughs School after a petition was presented to school authorities.

John M. Stockard was elected president of the association, succeeding Wilbur S. Finch, who declined a renomination. Mr. Gilbert was elected vice president; Mrs. Eleanor St. Omer Roy, secretary; Mrs. Evelin Stockard, assistant secretary; Kenneth Armstrong, financial secretary, and Joseph A. Koons, treasurer.

A. J. Driscoll, president of the Mid-city Citizens Association, addressed the association on the advantages of a five-cent fare for the downtown area. Capt. Hugh H. Groves, recently assigned to the Fifth Precinct, was welcomed by the association.

Text of Gov. Roosevelt's Radio Talk to Men's Club

State Capitol, Albany, N. Y., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—There follows the complete text of Gov. Roosevelt's radio address today to luncheon meetings of the Roosevelt Business and Professional Men's League held throughout the country:

I am glad to have this opportunity of speaking to luncheons in many parts of the United States, of the Roosevelt Business and Professional Men's League. I have heartily welcomed the support of your organizations. You represent a very large group of the thoughtful business and professional men throughout the Nation.

You represent a liberal and understanding point of view toward the relationship of business and government, and you include in your membership all political parties.

It sometimes has been said that it takes a great national crisis to rouse the interest of business men in the affairs of government—but I do not believe that this is any more true of business men than it is of any other occupation or profession in the country. It is, however, undoubtedly true that for many years Republican leaders have been able by assiduous advertising to persuade a large percentage of business men that their best interests lay in the success of the Republican party.

It is needless for me to point out that the events of the past three years have proven to very many of these same business men that the Republican leadership is by no means proof against unsound economics resulting in disastrous speculation and subsequent ruin. Furthermore this same leadership has been unable to do more than put temporary patches on a leaking roof without any attempt to put a new roof on our economic structure. And you all know that a roof that has to be mended in some new place after every rain won't last long, but must be rebuilt as quickly as possible. And business men in every part of the country have learned this other lesson from the depression: that an artificial overstimulated business boom is an unsound menace, especially if it affects only one portion of the population, while other portions of our population are getting poorer and poorer. That is why I have so greatly stressed the necessity of restoring prosperity to our agricultural interests, to our cattle interests, to our mining interests, as an essential adjunct to restoring general business prosperity.

This doctrine I have been preaching ever since the day I was nominated, and I am happy that the President in his speech on Tuesday finally has come to agree with me on this point when he says "every thinking citizen knows that the farmer, the worker and the business man are in the same boat, and must all come to shore together."

I am glad also that he thereby admits that the farmer, the worker and the business man are now all of them very much at sea!

Profound Conviction Of Abilities Claimed.

I have just returned from a visit to a score of the States of the Nation. I made this trip primarily to learn at first hand the problems and the conditions in the various sections of the country. I took occasion to explain various aspects of the program which I propose as a chart to guide my administration if I am elected President.

Back in April in discussing certain questions I used the term to describe my policy—not a new term, but one which had historic standing—"a concert of interest." I have conceived it to be a necessity in the present state of affairs to keep this constantly in mind.

To do otherwise is to go from group to group in the country, promising temporary and oftentimes inexpedient things. It is to go to the farmers and promise them something and to the businessman and promise them another thing. In fact, we have had an excellent example recently of belated promises addressed specifically to a group in the hope that with some new temporary expedient, suggested a month before election, the minds of farmers may be turned away from the grim fact of a consistently unfriendly attitude on the part of the administration over many years. This type of campaigning, which might be called a "pork barrel" campaign, is not my notion of what the country needs in a time like this.

It is my profound conviction that the Democratic candidates are to be entrusted with the administration of government at the coming election. There will be high responsibility and I am not going to enter upon that responsibility without charting a course sufficiently broad and deep to make certain a successful voyage. I am not going to confuse the long view by small items of temporary expediency. Hence I have described the entire compass of my policy as a "concert of interests"—North and South, East and West—agriculture, industry, mining, commerce and finance.

Changed Concept Of Responsibility Urged.

With this broad purpose in mind, I have further described the spirit of my program as a "new deal," which is plain English for a changed concept of the duty and responsibility of government toward economic life. Into this general plan and actuated by this spirit, I have been setting the details of the program intended to right specific troubles of specific groups without, at the same time, inflicting hardships upon other groups. Above all, my program has looked to the long view, intending to see that the factors that brought about our present condition may not occur again.

The central fact of our economic life is its failure to see beyond the barriers of immediate concerns. Perhaps it is too strong a word to call this ignorance—but it certainly means that we do not know enough about ways to produce and we do not know enough about ways of keeping on producing. With the most efficient system of industry ever devised our country has been brought to the point of reducing its output by one-half while most of us sit around and look at each other in bewilderment and indecision. We need to know how to keep on working. If we can learn this, and I believe we can, all other problems can be solved with ease.

The theory upon which we have been proceeding for ten years is a shocking impossibility; it is that goods can be produced which can not be bought.

There were two unusual features that characterized business during our late decade of prosperity. First, great strides toward productive efficiency were made. Second, the goods produced by this efficiency were in large part being purchased on credit. Credit is of course a necessity to business. But today we know that our recent use of credit was ungoverned and unmeasured. To reduce it to homely terms, people incurred more debts than they could safely carry and the incurrence of this debt, encouraged as it was, by reckless statements from Washington, had much to do with the crash that we have experienced.

To prevent such a recurrence of unmeasured expansion of credit is the task of statesmanship in the next few years. That is not to say that I favor complete government control over the use of credit, but that I do propose the use of governmental assistance in bringing to the attention of producer and consumer alike such enlightened information as will enable the people to protect themselves against unwarranted and headlong plunges into excessive debt. It is up to the government to maintain its most sacred trust to guard the welfare of its citizens. And such a trust requires the regulation of such balance among productive processes as will tend to a stabilization of the structure of business. That such a balance ought to be maintained by cooperation within business itself goes without saying. And it is my hope that interference of government to bring about such a stabilization can be kept at a minimum, limiting itself perhaps to a wise dissemination of information.

The other factor is that whenever income in any great group in the population becomes so disproportionate as to dry up purchasing power within any one group, the balance of economic life is thrown out of order. It is a proper concern of the government to use wise measures of regulation such as will bring this purchasing power back to normal. This emergency exists among the farmers in the Nation today and I have not hesitated to say that the Government owes a duty with respect to the restoration of their purchasing power.

Aims at Security For Industrial Workers.

Other industries have problems which in many essentials are similar to those of agriculture, and they ought to be met in similar ways. Most of the other industries are more highly integrated, however, and their planning policies are frequently further advanced. I spoke of two categories of those who are suffering the wrost of contemporary distresses. Besides the farmers, there are the workers in other industries.

We need for them a greater assurance of security. Old age, sickness and unemployment insurance are minimal requirements in these days, but they are not enough. Whether we are thinking of the heart-breaking problem of present distress and of the possibility of preventing its recurrence in the future, or whether we are merely thinking about the prosperity and continuity of industry itself, we know now that some measures of regularization and planning for balance among industries and for envisaging production as a national activity must be devised. We must set up some new objectives; we must have new kinds of management. Business must think less of its own profit and more of the national function it performs. Each unit of it must think of itself as part of a greater whole, one piece in a large design.

I believe with all my heart that business and professional men have a high sense of their responsibilities as American citizens, have a high regard for the public welfare. Therefore I am confident that they will go along with me in working wholeheartedly toward the national good in the broadest sense of that term.

One more word to you, my friends. It is true that many business men have been taught the glittering generality that high tariffs are the salvation of American business. You and I today know the final absurdity of a tariff so high that it has prevented all outside nations from purchasing American-made goods for the very simple reason that because of our exclusive tariff they could not pay us in goods, and did not have the alternative of paying us in gold.

I remind you that for romantic adventurings in foreign markets we expect and hope to substitute realistic study and actual exchange of goods. We shall try to discover with each country in turn the things which can be exchanged with mutual benefit and shall seek to further this exchange to the best of our ability. This economic interchange is the most important item in any country's foreign policy. Out of economic disputes arise the irritations which lead to competitive armament and are fruitful causes of war.

Modern Terms Of Individualism.

More realistic mutual arrangements for trade, substituted for the present system in which each nation attempts to exploit the markets of every other, giving nothing in return, will do more for peace of the world and will contribute more to supplement the eventual reduction of armament burdens, than any other policy which could be devised. And at the same time it will make possible the approach to a national economic policy at home which will have as its central feature the fitting of production programs to the actual probabilities of consumption. At least, the issue will no longer be confused by the impossible hopes of selling in foreign markets which can not now pay for our products. There will no longer be that excuse for the overbuilding of American industries. And they can begin the process of accommodation to markets on which they can count which has been too long delayed.

The relations between Government and business will necessarily be in process of redefinition during the coming years. I said in a speech which redefined individualism in modern terms, that business leaders are now expected to assume the responsibilities which accompany their power. It must be the policy of the Government to see that they do it. A good deal can be done in this way, especially if we mobilize public opinion. It is a way we must honestly try. The time has come when industrial leadership must serve the public interest. I am sure that you will not fail to approve.

I have discovered in my journeying that, as I suspected, the American people are thoroughly disillusioned concerning our economic policies at home and abroad. There is arising an insistent demand for a new deal. I have been telling you some of the ways in which I conceive those insistent demands ought to be met. I should like to say again that there is neither magic nor cure-all in any of this. Hard necessity drives us now. The mandate is clear and peremptory. These are the things we must do.

We are engaged in a national enterprise. There are no sacred highly privileged special interests which we are pledging ourselves to protect. There is no panacea for our economic ills. There are, however, methods to be tried for attaining a genuine concert of interests. I desire to pledge myself to this service. It will be long and arduous; with the help of all of you we shall reach the goal.

CURTIS SAYS WORST OF DEPRESSION OVER

Blames Farm Deflation on Federal Reserve Policies Under Wilson.

Omaha, Nebr., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Reaffirming his "great faith in this wonderful country," Vice President Charles Curtis tonight asserted the worst of the depression "has come and gone."

"Every day can be brighter for us, if we have faith, and will all pull together in harmony for the public welfare," he said in a campaign speech prepared for delivery at the Brandeis Theater.

Repeating statements made in a luncheon address at Fremont, Nebr., today, Curtis described President Hoover as the first President who has been able to accomplish anything in the face of panic.

The Vice President asserted the farmers' "present depression," started in 1919, with the "drastic, unreasonable deflation of the farmer" by the Federal Reserve Board under direction of President Wilson, by the advice of William G. McAdoo and other Democrats.

Curtis then turned to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation with the statement "it will not be continued after this emergency passes."

"In the course of seven months' business," he said, "the R. F. C. authorized loans totaling $1,054,814,000 to 4,105 separate institutions, and three-fifths of all went to banks and trust companies, which had a most bracing effect on the 42,000,000 bank depositors of this country, who were fearful of the safety of all banks and might easily have started a run on all banks."

The Vice President declared "our people have come out of every panic stronger, better and more prosperous until today, after seventeen major depressions and many minor ones, we have become the richest and most powerful nation on earth." Similarly, after the present depression, he predicted, the country will go forward "stronger and better and more prosperous than ever."

Approximately 450 western Iowa Republicans were in the crowd which heard Curtis. After his talk here, he was to leave for Minneapolis.

WALKER IS DROPPED AS TAMMANY CHOICE

which I feel my candidacy might do, I request that my name be withheld from the convention, and this decision is based solely upon my willingness to put the interests of the party above my personal desires."

An agreement to put O'Brien up for the remainder of the Walker term, running to the end of 1933, found all five city borough leaders in accord.

McKee Not Considered.

Edward J. Flynn, leader in the Bronx, seconded O'Brien's nomination. Flynn is Gov. Roosevelt's secretary of state.

The Bronx is the section of the city from which comes Joseph V. McKee, who succeeded Walker and who had been mentioned as a possible fusion candidate for mayor.

Mention of McKee's name brought prolonged cheers, but he was not placed in nomination.

No one other than O'Brien was put up.

Tammany Chief Curry, before the convention adjourned, offered a resolution, adopted amid cheers, calling for an "overwhelming vote" for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket and the State ticket headed by Lehman.

The resolution spoke of the desire for "party harmony."

The Garden, which had housed a shouting crowd, was half emptied before the chairman called for a short address by the new nominee. The crowd was tired by the necessity of calling the roll of all the 32,075 delegates qualified to attend, a procedure requiring hours.

Nominee Urges Harmony.

O'Brien, large and tall, ruddy of face, slow and deliberate of speech, with a ringing voice, said:

"This is not a time to discuss the issues of the campaign; rather it is a time for thankfulness on my part and an appeal for party harmony. Let there be success for Franklin D. Roosevelt (applause) and all others on the ticket. Let there be understanding and united efforts for a victory in November that will stand without precedent in the political history of our city."

O'Brien at the age of 59 has been in public service since 1901. He was a close associate of the late Charles F. Murphy, Tammany czar.

Former Gov. Smith did not attend tonight's convention, but he kept in close touch with it and was known to be opposed to backing Walker again. He was described as pleased with the choice of O'Brien, an old friend.

Democrats in Connecticut Rivals to Entertain Ritchie

State Senator and Fifth District Club Issue Invitation for Receptions at Different Homes at Same Hour on Visit for Dinner.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Political significance of the annual dinner of the Fifth District Democratic Club here next Sunday was overshadowed today by the social aspects of the affair as two rival reception committees sought the honor of entertaining Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, the guest speaker for the day.

Senator Fred Atwater, of the Twenty-first State Senatorial District, which includes the Fifth District, is issuing invitations to Democratic leaders of the State and city to meet Gov. Ritchie at 2 o'clock at his home.

The Fifth District Democratic Club, sponsors of the dinner, is issuing invitations to the same Democratic leaders, bidding them to be present to meet Gov. Ritchie at 2 o'clock at the home of National Committeeman Archibald McNeil.

City Sheriff Alexander J. Elson, president of the Fifth District Democratic Club, says the reception at the McNeil home is the "official reception" and is being arranged under the supervision of the club.

Senator Atwater says his plans, according to telegraphic information from Gov. Ritchie, call for his meeting the governor at the railroad station at 1:20 p. m. Sunday and conducting the distinguished visitor to the Atwater home, where he will greet Democratic leaders of the city and State.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Invited to two different receptions to be held at the same time in Bridgeport, Conn., Sunday, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie tonight issued a statement that he would be the guest of the Fifth District Democratic Club.

The Maryland Governor explained that he had been invited by Archibald McNeil, Democratic national committeeman from Connecticut to speak at Bridgeport on October 9 and later Senator Fred Atwater invited him to stay at the latter's home during his visit.

Gov. Ritchie said he will be the "guest of Mr. McNeil and the Fifth District Democratic Club as my invitation to Bridgeport came from them" but "would be happy if the arrangements might permit me to attend both receptions."

Maryland Senator Caustic on Hoover

(Associated Press.)

Senator Tydings, of Maryland, in a statement issued through the Democratic national committee yesterday, said President Hoover in his Des Moines speech "left far more unsaid than he said."

"He did not say what had become of the chicken in every pot, and all the other extravagant Republican campaign promises of 1928," said Tydings, going on to list another half dozen items:

"Recently he said that what the country needs is a good joke," he continued, "and I say that the country has had jokes enough and what the country needs is a good President and Gov. Roosevelt will supply the deficiency which now exists."

EDITOR SEES HOOVER BEATEN IN MIDWEST

Henry Wallace Says Condition of Farmers Bodes Ill to President.

(Associated Press.)

Henry Wallace, Iowa editor, in a statement issued yesterday through the National Progressive League, said it was his guess President Hoover would be defeated in the Middle West "after the enthusiasm of the Republican office-holding contingent has spent itself in trying to squeeze comfort for farmers out of the Hoover Des Moines speech."

"Most of the farmers of the Middle West," he said, "are Republicans and it would have been easy for them to accept the outworn shibboleths which the tariff in President Hoover's Des Moines address were it not for the fact that thousands of them have been unable to make the second payment of their taxes which came due in September, and the semiannual installment of interest which usually comes due in September or October."

Wallace said the farmers heard the President's suggestion "that he was in favor of something being done about the mortgage situation, but could not understand just what plan he had in mind."

"Hoover told them," he continued, "that farm products were a billion dollars higher than during the early summer, but they know that new corn is 10 cents a bushel, oats 8 cents and hogs 3 cents a pound on the farm.

"They were glad to know that he proposed to use the European war debts to enlarge our markets for agricultural products, but are wondering if any more rapid action can be obtained along this line than by Roosevelt's plan of reciprocal tariff arrangements."

"Some of them," he added, "thought of Hoover's promise at St. Louis, in 1928, to call a special session of Congress in order to arrive speedily at a determination of the farm problem before the harvest of 1929, and of his declaration of purpose at West Branch, to establish for American farmers an income equal to that of other occupations."

Tumulty Attacks Defense of G.O.P.

Women's Democratic Club Told Enemy Fails to Find Scapegoat.

Prohibition was the subject of the address last evening by Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the late President Wilson, at the weekly "town meeting" of the Woman's National Democratic Club. These meetings will be held every Thursday evening until election and are open to the public. Mr. Tumulty said, in part:

"As we daily witness radical changes in the physical and scientific world before our very eyes, too, we behold a strange phenomenon in the world of Republican politics; a party defending itself at every turn, desperately fighting with its back to the wall, no longer aggressive, militant—hating and hesitating, wiggling and wobbling, following every will-of-the-wisp. In vain Republican leaders survey the earth and pierce to the very skies and beyond to the stratosphere to find a Democratic scapegoat; some excuse for all that has happened.

"In the matter of prohibition in 1928 we were promised the facts through the Wickersham Commission. With the facts of prohibition ascertained but ignored by the present administration, now foot-sore and weary, our Republican adversaries, realizing the utter hopelessness of the eighteenth amendment—that foolish and futile device set up by bigotry to regulate the habits and morals of a great cosmopolitan people—are penitent and ask another chance to fool and hoodwink the American people."

HOOVER IS INDORSED BY 7 LABOR LEADERS

Group Voices Appreciation of Deeds in Their Behalf at White House.

(Associated Press.)

A committee of seven labor leaders representing the building trades after a conference late yesterday with President Hoover, said they had come to express themselves as "appreciative of what he had done" for their industry "and in behalf generally of the men and women who toiled."

They said they expressed appreciation also of the efforts of Secretary Doak in their behalf.

M. J. McDonough, president of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor, said the group also had expressed appreciation of the President's Des Moines address.

"We are for him both politically and otherwise," he said.

McDonough and others said, however, that in this regard they were not speaking for all the members of their organizations, which they estimated to total about 1,000,000.

On the committee in addition to McDonough were John Coefield, president of the United Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters; Thomas E. Burke, secretary and treasurer of the same association, and M. F. Garrett, general organizer; John Posehl, president of the Hoisting and Operating Engineers; Thomas Lane, representing the Bricklayers International Union, and John P. Alpine, supervising director of the United States Employment Service, who presented the group.

Organization Held Hope of Employes

Commerce Workers Told Need of Taking Part in Labor Movement.

Federal employes can expect legislative assistance only through participation in the labor movement, Chester M. Wright, editor of the International Labor News Service, declared at a meeting of Commerce Department Lodge, No. 9, American Federation of Government Employes, last night in the Commerce Department auditorium.

The lodge, which was presented with its charter by David R. Glass, president of the federation, was welcomed by E. W. Libbey, chief clerk of the department and president of the Association of Chief Clerks.

Mr. Wright pointed out that "anyone can bother legislators, but getting results comes from being organized. There is but one labor movement that gets listened to," he declared, "and it has tremendous facilities for helping those who are affiliated to it."

Miss Fanny P. Lamson, president of the lodge, presided and accepted the charter. Other officers of the lodge are Mrs. Mattie R. Leverette, first vice president; Miss Mary L. McGee, second vice president; Charles E. Ridgeway, secretary; A. J. Webb, treasurer, and James M. Copeland, sergeant at arms.

Man Taken in Virginia On Charge of Bad Check

Taken into custody at Hot Springs, Va., several days ago by agents of the Department of Justice, Arthur L. Hitner will be returned to this city to face a charge of giving the Mayflower Hotel a bad check for $25.

Hitner is alleged to have claimed several months ago that he "knew something" about the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby. He is also said to have conferred with Dean Dobson-Peacock, of Norfolk, Va., when the dean was interested in bringing to bay the persons who had stolen the baby. A Police Court warrant was issued yesterday so that he could be brought back here to face the check charge.

Lord Inchcape's Estate Fixed at $7,330,000

Edinburgh, Scotland, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Lord Inchcape, who died at Monte Carlo on May 23, left a total estate of £2,124,707 (approximately $7,330,000) according to the will filed today. Death duties total £1,027,447 (approximately $3,544,000).

INSULL SURRENDERS AND SLEEPS IN JAIL

Judge Holmes, and be remanded to jail for eight days more. At 9:55 p. m. the great stone door of the Barrie Jail, its tiny window set with three iron bars, sloughed to on the bowed form of the once powerful millionaire.

The sleeping hamlet of Barrie, a town of 7,000 on the shores of Lake Simcoe, knew nothing of the drama being enacted along its quiet, tree-lined streets, knew nothing of the significance of the shadows that moved, ghost-like, through the somber drizzle of a misty autumn night.

Tonight Assistant States' Attorney John Hampton, of Chicago, who had dashed about Ontario in a hectic pursuit of the financier, will return to Toronto with Police Sergt. Anthony Blaze, of Chicago. Tomorrow morning, while Insull is rising in the jail, they will return to Chicago by airplane.

Chicago, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—The State of Illinois today formally requested Federal authorities at Washington to seek the extradition of Samuel Insull from Paris, and of his brother, Martin J., from Orillia, Ont., and the Cook County grand jury turned its attention toward raising funds for extradition proceedings.

Emmet Whealan, president of the county board, and Maurice Kavanaugh, chairman of the finance committee, agreed to appear before the grand jury tomorrow morning.

Lisbon, Portugal, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Lisbon police announced tonight they had received instructions to search for and arrest Samuel Insull, identified by them as an American banker who, they had been informed, had left Paris en route to Portugal.

(Efforts to reach Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate, who has been indicted on charges of grand larceny and embezzlement, at the Paris Hotel where he was staying were futile today.)

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP OF UTILITIES URGED

Norman Thomas Also Favors Socialized Banking; Hits Roosevelt Plan.

San Francisco, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Outright public ownership of public utilities and socialized banking were advocated here tonight by Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, in a campaign address.

Regulation of public utilities, he declared, "has proved its inadequacy in the case of railroads." Socialized banking, he described as "virtually necessary."

On the subject of utilities, he cited what he called the "Insull crash" as "proving what the collectivism of private holding companies means."

"Gov. Roosevelt's eight-point program," Thomas continued, "for regulating the power companies borders on absurdity in view of his failure to protect 50 per cent of the people of New York City from paying more for electric lights by reason of the introduction of a service charge during his administration. We need a publicly owned system in which the Federal, State and municipal governments cooperate in the production, transmission and distribution."

Banking, the candidate said, should "be fitted into a general Socialist system." He declared "Government-owned banks otherwise might be like the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, a mere aid to capitalism."

After citing what he said was "the shocking record of privately owned banks," he concluded:

"Positively, there can be no planned production for use, not profit, without social control of credit. Hence our Socialist program: Complete socialization of the Federal Reserve system, with compulsion on all commercial banks to join it; guarantee of deposits under this system; the expansion of the Postal Savings Bank into a Federal bank with segregated thrift and commercial accounts; encouragement of State and municipal banks which, like the Federal Bank, must belong to the Federal Reserve system."

PRESIDENT IS URGED TO EXTEND TOURING

his Des Moines address and upon the receptions given him at wayside stations on the return route. White House aids made public more than a score of congratulatory telegrams which they said were taken at random from a mass of messages.

During brief appearances outside his office to pose for photographs with various groups, the President smiled and waved to individuals he recognized.

"Waist Deep in Pygmies."

Various of his callers told newspapermen in the White House lobby they had not only congratulated him upon his trip to Iowa but had delivered reports which they thought he found pleasing. Lawrence Phipps, of Denver, former Republican senator from Colorado, said he told Mr. Hoover:

"Colorado is safe not only for the President but for the whole Republican ticket. You can believe that, no matter what you may have read about Gov. Roosevelt's reception in the West. He did not make much of an impression."

Representative Treadway (Republican), Massachusetts, said he had discussed political conditions in the Bay State with the President and had told him he believed it would vote Republican in November.

President Hoover yesterday received a telegram from Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, saying of the Executive's Des Moines address that "compared to the speeches of your opponent and your other critics you are what Sophie Tucker once called being waist deep in pygmies."

White House officials yesterday made public more than a score of other telegrams. One from J. Keeley, former managing editor of the Chicago Tribune, said:

"That's the stuff to feed the troops."

Late in the day, White House aids made public the following telegram from Edsel Ford:

"Will you please accept my sincere congratulations on your Des Moines address. It was a most straightforward, courageous statement which met every issue."

Secretary Wilbur to Stump.

Secretary Wilbur next Monday will begin a speaking campaign for the administration which will take him into seven States, and perhaps more.

His itinerary, announced yesterday at the Interior Department, calls for two addresses in Cincinnati on October 10. Other dates:

October 11, address at Newark, Ohio; October 12, Rockford, Ill., where he will lay the corner stone of the new postoffice; October 13, University of Michigan; October 14, Monticello, Ill.; October 15, Alton, Ill.; October 17, Northwestern University; October 18, Grinnell, Iowa, at noon, and Iowa City, Iowa, 8 p. m.; October 19, Lafayette, Ind.; October 20, address at University of Chicago dinner; October 21, State teachers convention at Indianapolis; October 24, New Hampshire, place not designated, and October 25, speech in Massachusetts at some point yet to be chosen.

Interior Department officials said the speaking tour of the Secretary might be extended still further after October 25.

Paraguay Honors Russian Soldier.

Asuncion, Paraguay, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Ivan Belaieff, former Russian general, was made an honorary general today in the Paraguayan army in recognition of his services on the Gran Chaco battle front against Bolivian troops. Many former officers in the disbanded imperial army of Russia were reported fighting with the Paraguayans.

DEPRESSION BROKEN, HURLEY TELLS IOWA

Leadership of Hoover Stands Vindicated, Davenport Crowd Hears.

Davenport, Iowa, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Secretary of War Patrick Hurley told an audience here tonight the "backbone of the depression has been broken" and that the "leadership of President Hoover stands vindicated."

In the second of two scheduled Iowa campaign addresses the Cabinet member referred to the keeping of the country on the gold standard as a "momentous achievement," and said the economic system has been saved.

Much of his address was devoted to contrasting the definite stand he said the President has taken on all important current questions with the asserted failure of the Democratic presidential candidate "to make himself clear on a single issue."

Attacks Roosevelt's Stand.

Hurley declared President Hoover evaded no issues in the opening address of his active campaign in Des Moines last Tuesday, nor at any other time in the campaign. The people, the Secretary said, "know where the President stands."

He then asked what the people know of Gov. Roosevelt's position on such issues as the bonus, tariff, and international questions, the administration's reconstruction policies and related subjects.

Brilliant Campaign.

With only a few weeks remaining before the election, Hurley said, only on the railroads "has the Democratic nominee spoken with any degree of soundness and precision and then he was merely repeating the policies of President Hoover."

Of the President's "war against the depression," he said that while not every plan brought complete results, Mr. Hoover's tactics "saved the day and often averted complete disaster."

"In the conduct of this brilliant campaign against depression for the American people the President of the United States has accomplished what no other public leader in any other country has been able to do."

Man Wanted Here Held in Warrenton

Police Will Await Action, There Before Pressing Check Charges.

Probability that Arthur L. Hitner, who, it has been alleged, once told Dean Dobson-Peacock, of Norfolk, that he could produce the Lindbergh baby for a ransom, would not be returned here for some time to face bad check charges was expressed last night by Detective Sergt. Clarence Talley, of the headquarters check squad.

Sergt. Talley said authorities at Warrenton, Va., where Hitner is being held, have informed him they will press two charges of spurious checks against the man there.

Warrants alleging Hitner passed worthless checks for $20 and $25, respectively, on a downtown department store and a hotel are in Talley's possession, he said. He indicated he would file a detainer for Hitner with Warrenton authorities.

Hitner will be questioned by Department of Justice operatives, it was learned, with regard to the purported holding captive of a private detective who was investigating the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby.

ROOSEVELT LEADING IN 800,000 POLLED

New York Governor Takes Big Lead Over President in Tabulation.

New York, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—With nearly 800,000 votes counted in the straw poll conducted by the Literary Digest, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt increased his lead over President Hoover, gaining a clear majority over his rival in the third week's tabulation.

Roosevelt now has 404,982 votes or 50.75 per cent of the 798,089 votes now counted. Hoover has 325,946, or 40.82 per cent. The remainder are split among the other candidates, with Norman Thomas polling 6.65 per cent of the total.

Hoover is now leading in six States—Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey and Rhode Island, having a combined Electoral College vote of 54.

Roosevelt is leading in Alabama, California, Colorado, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Mississippi, Montana, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, West Virginia and Wisconsin, States polling 244 in the Electoral College.

In the analysis of "how the same voters voted in 1928," Roosevelt is shown as gaining less strength than he did last week. The Hoover inroads into the Democratic vote appeared to remain about the same.

Roosevelt won the lead in the New York voting, with 117,282 against Hoover's 106,708, and increased his percentage in Pennsylvania by a small margin.

D. P. KINGSLEY DIES; NEW YORK LIFE HEAD

Board Chairman Succumbs to Heart Attack After Long Illness.

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Darwin P. Kingsley, chairman of the board of the New York Life Insurance Co., died at his home here, 660 Park avenue, tonight after a long illness of heart disease. He was born at Alburg, Vt., May 5, 1857.

Mr. Kingsley, who had been ill for two years, took a turn for the worse last June while at his summer home in Southampton, Long Island. Only recently was he sufficiently strong to permit his return to New York.

Mr. Kingsley became chairman of the insurance company's board of directors in March, 1931, after having been its president for 24 years.

On leaving college he went to Colorado, where he became the editor of a local newspaper. In this capacity he took a vigorous part in civic progress, becoming State auditor and State superintendent of insurance. From this position he was called by the New York Life Insurance Co. to take charge of its New England department.

After successive promotions he became president in 1907, just at the close of the famous Armstrong investigation into the insurance field. Under his administration, colleagues said tonight, the company more than doubled in size.

A member of numerous civic and social clubs, Mr. Kingsley served as president of the New York State Chamber of Commerce from 1920 to 1921 and was a director of various corporations.

His first wife having died in 1890, Mr. Kingsley married Miss Josephine I. McCall, daughter of a former president of the New York Life, in 1895. She is among the survivors.

According to records at the Soldiers' Home, Beckman entered the institution in 1926 and was discharged from the Army in 1902. He left the home September 21. He has no relatives in America. He came here shortly before the Spanish war from Germany.

W. E. Grimes Rites Held at St. Mark's

Funeral services for William E. Grimes, who died at his home, 417 B street northeast, were held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Third and A streets southeast, with which he had been identified for many years. General Accident Guards Held Best Chamber Told of System of Prevention Work Suited to Capital.

A general plan for accident prevention, rather than a series of plans for individual plants, was recommended by W. M. Graff, supervisor of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, in a speech yesterday before a committee of the Washington Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Graff pointed out that accident rates in large industrial plants were lower than in smaller plants, because of the greater facility in the larger ones for prevention work. In such communities as Washington, where there are about 500 small plants, a general plan of work would be most effective, he said.

Mr. Graff also explained to the committee the procedure in making up grade schedules for the various occupational classifications. The committee of the chamber is considering recommending such a plan as that outlined by the speaker yesterday.

may provoke the parties securing divorces here to ask for an investigation, and in that event each case will be tried on its merits, but each action will have to be instituted separately.

It was stated yesterday that O'Leary came to Alexandria in June, 1931, and filed application for divorce, but the decree was never granted because the court found out that O'Leary was not a resident of Alexandria. Afterward a warrant charging perjury was obtained and the man had left Alexandria. He was found to be living in New York and serving a year for nonsupport. Policeman Kelly went to New York and brought O'Leary to Alexandria.

O'Leary stated in the affidavit that Washington had told him it was not necessary to live in Alexandria to obtain a divorce, if he could get witnesses to testify that he did live here. O'Leary stated he had never lived in Alexandria.

50-YEAR RECORD SET FOR OCTOBER BY RAIN

Downpour Over 5 States Breaks Drought; Fall Here 3.73 Inches.

With Washington in the center of a steady fifteen-hour downpour of rain, which swept across five Middle Atlantic States, officials at the Weather Bureau yesterday recorded the heaviest October precipitation for this area in 50 years.

Almost 4 inches of rain fell during the long deluge, which ended shortly after 10 a. m. yesterday. A sudden drop in temperature followed the downpour, with 48 degrees being registered at 6 o'clock yesterday morning.

At the height of the storm streets throughout the city were congested with stranded motorists and the District Fire Department was deluged with calls for aid from residents whose homes were flooded with water.

Electric facilities in nearby Montgomery County, Md., were crippled for several hours and State highways presented a problem for automotive travel.

A precipitation of 3.73 inches, the greatest since 1877, was recorded in Washington. The previous mark for a steady rainfall was 3.98 inches.

A drought, almost comparable to that of 1930, was broken by the rain in five States.

RITCHIE APPOINTED TO BENCH IN FAIRFAX

Becomes Associate Justice of Trial Justice Court; School Changes.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 348, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Fairfax 186.

Judge Abner C. Ritchie, of Fairfax, Va., has been named associate justice of the Fairfax County Trial Justice Court by Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the County Circuit Court. The action has been approved by the county board of supervisors.

Judge Ritchie has been a member of the Fairfax County Bar Association for fifteen years. He has been a justice of the peace of Providence Magisterial District for many years and served as judge of the county Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court since it was created until a year ago, when he resigned. He is a commissioner of chancery of the County Circuit Court and a member of the Fairfax Rotary Club.

Judge Ritchie will preside in the Trial Justice Court in the absence or sickness of Judge Paul E. Brown. The supervisors, at the last meeting, raised the salary of the trial justice to $225 a month. Since the adoption of the Trial Justice Court three months ago, the court has turned more than $300 in trial fees alone into the county treasury each month.

The Fairfax County School Board at its meeting yesterday changed, enlarged and rearranged school bus routes in the various sections of the county to take care of the overcrowded conditions in the schools and on the buses. Several requests for minor changes were refused.

In connection with changes on the Forestville-Herndon route, Resident State Engineer E. J. Micou told the board that he intends to fill the holes in the old Georgetown-Dranesville Pike temporarily, as the present hard surface is to be torn up and a new road built at a later date.

The board refused the request of the Franconia Community League to employ another teacher for the four rooms, which now house 183 pupils, but agreed to transfer some of the pupils in the lower grades, especially those who attended the old Cameron School, to the Lee-Jackson School. They also refused to reopen the old Cameron School on Telegraph road.

Rockville Pike Citizens Make Protest on Airport

Protest against the activities of the Congressional Airport was lodged yesterday with the Montgomery County Commissioners by a delegation from the Rockville Pike Citizens Association, headed by Mrs. Philander Johnson. Attorney Edward Peter, counsel for the association, presented the protest.

The citizens are incensed by low flying of airplanes from the field, they said, and also object to the traffic conditions caused by Sunday exhibitions at the flying field. The citizens also were opposed to commercial work being performed on Sunday, which they said disturbed their Sabbath reveries.

Mrs. Morris, wife of the principal of the Hyattsville High School, had her first mishap when she stumbled over the doorsill of the State's attorney's office in the courthouse in Marlboro, where she was testifying before the grand jury. Her knee was badly skinned. Then, while returning to her office in Hyattsville, the car in which she was riding was in collision with another at Largo, Md. She was a passenger in a machine driven by E. H. High, of 528 Eighteenth street northwest, the other auto being driven by Mrs. Julian Hall, of Hall Station, Md.

Another passenger in High's car, Mrs. Bessie Calvin, of Hyattsville, received possible internal injuries and a possible fracture of the pelvis. Both women were taken to Bladensburg by Attorney John S. White, a passerby, and there transferred to the ambulance of the Bladensburg Rescue Squad. The three children of Harry Fleming, of Hyattsville, also in the car, were uninjured. County Policeman G. William Gray investigated the accident but made no arrests.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Naval Ensign George O. Augustine, who married a second time six years ago after hearing his first wife was dead, sought a divorce today for the third time from wife No. 1, Marie Augustine, a Washington, D. C., nurse.

Two decrees previously granted Augustine, after he learned the wife whom he married in 1913 and parted from in 1921, was still alive, were set aside on technicalities. Directors File Answer To Suit of Fire Chief Contending that he is not entitled to another trial because he did not file exceptions to the findings of the fire trial board of the department within five days, the board of directors of the Cabin John Park Volunteer Fire Department yesterday filed an answer to the mandamus proceedings filed in County Circuit Court at Rockville by the deposed chief of the department, Thomas Sullivan.

Chief Sullivan had asked the court to issue a writ of mandamus to compel the board of directors to act on an appeal from the trial board ruling which barred his counsel, the law firm of Peter & Simpson, from the trial. He refused to appear for trial until the appeal was acted on and in his absence the trial board heard evidence of complaining witnesses and ordered him dismissed from the department.

THE NEW DEAL.

Assuming that Gov. Roosevelt should be elected President, and granting that his program for national betterment as thus far presented is made in absolute good faith, what would be the first important steps he would take?

Obviously his first objective would be the selection of a Cabinet to assist him in executing his policies. He would choose men who could be depended upon to reverse the policies of the present administration in domestic and foreign affairs. The consequences of a radical change in foreign policy by the United States can not be discussed in this brief space. The reader may explore this subject in his own thoughts.

The first domestic matter to be considered by President Roosevelt would be approval, modification, or rejection of the Hoover reconstruction and emergency relief program. This is the most urgent business before the Government and the people. If President Roosevelt should approve the Hoover program in its entirety there would be no interruption of this phase of the recuperative process now going on. If he should decide to modify the program he would find it necessary to ask Congress to amend or repeal existing laws relating to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Farm Board, the Home Loan bank system, the Federal Reserve system, etc. As it required from December to July to enact this legislation, six months probably would be required to overhaul and reorganize it, and three months more to get the new program in operation.

If President Roosevelt should decide to scrap the Hoover program entirely and set up one of his own, a longer time would be required to push the new program through Congress. Assuming that some Republicans in Congress would co-operate for the sake of expediting national recovery, a radically new program would nevertheless encounter delays resulting from conscientious deliberation as to ways and means.

The Seventy-third Congress will not meet until December, 1933, unless sooner called in extra session. Doubtless President Roosevelt would not be content to wait until December, 1933, before putting into effect his campaign pledges. He would call Congress together probably in April or May.

A fundamental part of Gov. Roosevelt's program is revision of the tariff which he has so vigorously denounced. He would ask Congress to revise the tariff without delay. Hence the extra session of next spring, if he should be elected, would have before it the task of revising the tariff, together with the overhauling of the reconstruction program if that should be called for.

The object of tariff revision under President Roosevelt would be downward revision of industrial schedules. No demand has been made by him or by anybody else for downward revision of duties on farm products.

When the last Democratic regime was succeeded by a Republican regime, two years were consumed in revising the tariff.

When the Coolidge administration was followed by the Hoover administration, thirteen months were consumed in revising a Republican tariff.

Tariff legislation arouses sectional and political conflicts. A proposal to change a tariff based upon Republican protective ideas into a tariff based upon Democratic competitive ideas would provoke a fight to the bitter end in Congress. It would involve the future fortunes of the two great parties. It would involve the question of a second term for President Roosevelt. It would put industries in all States on notice that the victorious administration might take away their tariff protection. They would fight for their existence, but in the meantime they would not dare to go forward in enterprises which might relieve unemployment. The industrial portion of the United States would be paralyzed, waiting for the outcome of the tariff struggle.

In deadly earnestness President Roosevelt would fight for tariff reduction. In equally deadly earnestness, Democratic senators and members of the House would resist reductions affecting their own States. Omitting House members, the record shows that Democratic senators as a rule voted against reduction of the tariff on commodities produced in their States. Many of them voted for increased duties, and for new duties on articles not previously on the dutiable list.

Long delay, accompanied by universal uncertainty and worry in industry, will mark the course of tariff revision in 1933-1934 if Gov. Roosevelt should be elected President. But he is in earnest, and it is inconceivable that he would not move to revise the industrial schedules downward if he should be elected.

FIGHTING THE FURLOUGH.

Federal employes are correct in their assumption that a drive will be made at the coming session of Congress to extend the furlough plan for another year. Conditions have not improved as rapidly as was anticipated when the economy act was passed. The new taxes have failed to yield revenue sufficient to balance the budget. At the conclusion of the first quarter of this year the Treasury had a deficit of approximately $400,000,000. The need for drastic new economies will be urged upon Congress in December. Federal workers will indeed have an uphill fight, if they expect to free themselves from the provisions of the economy act next year.

Some Government workers have unquestionably suffered hardships as a result of the legislation enacted by the last Congress. There is considerable justification for the indictment of the economy act as "one of the most confusing, impracticable and unjust laws ever adopted by the Congress." The fact remains, however, that living costs have declined about 20 per cent since predepression days, and the furlough plan has cost Government employes only 8 1-3 per cent of their salaries. So far as the furlough plan itself is concerned, the employes may have a difficult time in shaping an effective protest, even though they have a good case against the inequitable provisions that were added to the furlough plan.

It seems very improbable that the basic rate of Government pay can be restored next year. President Hoover has ordered a $500,000,000 slash in the budget, and congressional leaders are determined to economize rather than levy higher taxes. Government workers can not expect Congress to restore their former salaries and privileges while drastically reducing all other items of expenditure. Under these circumstances, it might be more effective for Government workers to concentrate their energy on correction of abuses in the economy act.

Most of the hardships that have been imposed upon Government employes result from restrictions outside of the furlough plan. In some cases, appropriations have been reduced so low that employes have been forced to take several furloughs without pay. Others have been dismissed. That section of the act which discriminates against married people is especially obnoxious. When the Federal employes attack these inequities, they are on sound footing. But there is every indication that a fight against continuance of the 30-day furlough, while the Government is in financial straits and the cost of living remains low, will be a waste of time and energy. If Government workers should succeed in knocking out the furlough plan, they could expect something more drastic to be set up in its place.

NO MORE PRICE PEGGING.

By advocating repeal of that section of the agricultural marketing act which permits the Farm Board to purchase commodities for the purpose of stabilizing markets, President Hoover has virtually eliminated the board as an issue in the campaign. Only the board's stabilization program has been subjected to severe criticism, partisan or otherwise. Most of its activities meet with the approval of both Democrats and Republicans and with all the farm organizations.

When agricultural prices began falling, with disastrous consequences for the farmer, members of both parties joined in requesting the board to peg prices. Pleas from Southern delegations in Congress were especially vociferous. The board made use of its extraordinary powers to purchase wheat and cotton in order to prevent a farm panic. For a time prices were stabilized, and farmers received hundreds of millions of dollars that would otherwise have been lost to them.

The failure of this experiment was apparent only when farmers refused to reduce their acreage so as to permit the surplus stocks of wheat and cotton to be disposed of without disrupting the domestic market. If farmers had been willing to plant smaller crops on the prospects of receiving higher prices, the beneficial effects of the stabilization program might not have been lost. This refusal of the farmers to cooperate with the board lies at the bottom of the stabilization fiasco. The only blame that can be attached to those who framed the law and the board which administered it arises from their failure to see that the great majority of farmers are not yet converted to the principle of control of crop production.

President Hoover recognizes that stabilization activities are impracticable in these circumstances, and therefore, favors repeal of that section of the act. That removes the issue from politics. It had already been eliminated from economics by the determination of the Farm Board not to enter the markets again.

Repeal of this section of the act would not, of course, interfere with the Farm Board's chief activities. The foremost purpose of the board is to promote cooperative marketing, to teach the farmer business methods so that he can market his products, and thus give agriculture the benefits that now go to middlemen handling farm products. This work is making steady progress. Until the cooperative marketing system has been firmly established and the farmer is in a position to control the sale of his own crops, the abolition of the Farm Board would be a blow to agriculture. Only the politicians who wish to discredit the Hoover administration, the grain merchants who fear the encroachment of cooperative marketing, and a few disgruntled farmers who think the Farm Board is responsible for the world-wide depression are seeking the outright repeal of the agricultural marketing act.

INCREASING SUICIDE RATE.

It would be the natural assumption of nearly every one that the growing number of suicides during the last three years could be largely attributed to the depression. Examination of the facts, however, does not bear out this conclusion. The suicide rate, while now sharply increasing, began to rise in 1925, and every year since then has added to the toll of self-destruction, until the total for the United States has reached the startling number of about 20,000 annually.

It is undoubtedly true that many cases of suicide can be traced directly to the losses and many distressing circumstances that have followed in the wake of recent hard times. But the ratio of suicides increased during the highly prosperous years just previous to the depression. There was only a slight increase last year, but the indications are that the current year will again register a sharp advance.

A curious feature of the extensive study of this question made on behalf of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company is that the suicide rate declined so sharply during the World War. There is little doubt, it is argued, that the low figures for suicide during and immediately after the war, both in this country and throughout the world, reflected the keen interest that the people had in living. So many vital happenings were taking place that individuals submerged their personal difficulties in the more important demands of their families, their communities and their country.

In considering remedies for this loss of life it is suggested that attention must be paid to the type of personality found to be associated with suicide rather than to place the entire emphasis upon purely external and material factors. Social forces which aim to mold character must assume some responsibility for aiding those who need help in facing the world. As one earnest worker puts it, "those whose minds are at peace, those who have a feeling of security, those who know the value of life and regard existence realistically, those who have happy personal contacts and friends who are interested in their well-being, are very unlikely to take their lives even under the stimulus of great provocation. It is more and more the obligation of the community to develop plans to control those forces which disintegrate personality and to build up those constructive attitudes which make for wholesome, happy and contented citizens."

HONEYMOON EXPRESSES

From the Boston Transcript.

One thing to be said for the present rule in Italy is that the busy mind of Mussolini, or perhaps of one of his close advisers, is forever thinking up ways to benefit the people and to popularize the government. The proposal to give newly-married couples a wedding journey to Rome at reduced rates might well have originated in the brains of an American railroad traffic manager. There is nothing new in the excursion idea anywhere, but the Italians have certainly hit upon a new application of it. Italians, it seems, are not great travelers in their own country, even when blessed with liberal means, and it is Mussolini's hope that a journey to Rome and an acquaintance with the glories of the Eternal City will stimulate the patriotic pride of the young visitors while they are of romantic and impressionable age.

Here in America our railroads give many excursions at low rates, and thousands of New Englanders have taken advantage of them to visit Washington, Niagara Falls, the White Mountains, Quebec. Could the idea be extended so that newly-married persons might have the privilege of excursion rates for a wedding journey at any time? Under the Italian plan the journey must be to Rome—not elsewhere. If the bride and bridegroom prefer Venice and the Lido or the Riviera and Monte Carlo they can, like Jonah, pay the full fare and go. So, if the plan were put into operation in this country, certain conditions should attach to the privilege. Every New Englander, of course, should know Boston even if he lets the capitals of the other States in our group go by. About 150,000 young people in New England, outside of Boston, are married every year, and if they yielded to the inducement of low fares and turned their faces hither after the strains of the wedding march died away, the entire map of this region would ere long be traversed every day in the year by honeymoon expresses coming to or going away from this center of sweetness and light.

Huge Joke.

President Hoover wrote to Weber and Fields that he thinks the country needs "a resoundingly good new joke." Maybe it does; the Republican party, at least faces the problem of laughing off the approaching election.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

MAN AND DOG.

"Let's go hunting!" "Right!" he said:
"I'll get my faded coat of red,
My peaked cap; my leather belt;
My mittens interlined with felt;
My boots, my socks, my trousers dun,
My shells, my double-barreled gun.
And in a half an hour or so
With you I'll be prepared to go."

From cellar to the garret ran
A very much bewildered man
In search of curious bits of gear,
Required when hunting days appear.
His wife and children flew about
To get the needed raiment out,
But while they rushed from floor to floor
The dog lay sleeping by the door.

Mankind is slave to curious dress
And things 'tis useful to possess.
With every change that may appear
Poor man requires a change of gear.
Behold his dog! Asleep! Content!
Prepared for any new event,
And when his master's voice is heard
He's up and ready at the word.

It Is Well to Know the Remedy, but Why Let Snakes Bite You?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

OUR hurts and misfortunes befall us with the shock of surprise because we miss the significance of the chain of events that preceded them.

Nothing is accidental in fact, and nothing would seem accidental if we were wise enough to recognize in each act the beginning of an inevitable sequence.

Some people possess such wisdom in small measure and call it foresight. It isn't a miraculous power, but the exercise of simple common sense. Knowing the cause, they can foresee the result—as a farmer who sets duck eggs can foretell the hatching of ducks.

Foresight is rare, but there is one form of it within the powers of the dullest mind. It is called moderation.

Moderation, or temperance, is normal. To be temperate is to avoid extremes—to be ordinary and usual and natural. And this kind of moderation serves as foresight, for one can see in advance that the result of it will be harmless.

Men have found artificial means of producing abnormal strength and courage and well-being, but the gain invariably results in a corresponding loss.

Some time ago a certain rich man who was an invalid discovered in radium water an apparent cure for all human ills. He was weak and it made him strong. It gave him an energy and a sense of well-being not justified by his physical condition.

But it did not overcome natural law. In the end it destroyed his blood cells, his tissues and his bones, and an autopsy revealed enough radium deposited in his body to kill many men.

The law never fails. The pendulum moved in one direction will move as far in the other. The thing lifted above its natural level will fall as far below. The exhilaration of excess is followed by revulsion and lassitude, excitement by boredom, enthusiasm by doubts and fears.

Only the moderation that is natural and normal leaves no debt to be paid. It is safe because it abides by the law.

Foresight could offer you nothing more. The ability to foresee reactions would enable you to avoid the ones that are hurtful, and you can do that simply by practicing the sanity called temperance.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Two Evils.
Detroit Free Press.

In their own fields, which sometimes overlap, the eighteenth amendment and the primary system are thoroughly demoralizing and dangerous, and with the one operating in the moral and social realm and the other in the political and governmental realm, they succeed together in pretty thoroughly harrying the Nation.

But if either of these two evils is any more dangerous to the United States than the other, we think that the palm for perniciousness ought to be awarded to the primary. In its own way, it is as fundamentally hostile to the continuance of a republican form of government as sovietism is.

Jack Garner's Postoffices.
Chicago Tribune.

Mr. Garner, say the Republican managers, must be remembered for his postoffices. Some of these mail mausoleums are and some of them aren't. A long time ago Postoffice Jack said if the Yankees got a ham he would get a hog, but Uvalde, the Texan's home town, population 5,000, has only $55,000 worth of letter boxes and stamp windows and Boyne City, Mich., population 2,600, has opened a postal home worth $65,000. Mr. Garner was headed off in the flower of his achievement or there would have been a billion dollars shot in third-class postmasters' havens and rural free delivery retreats.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

If Hi Johnson supports Roosevelt it will not be because he loves Franklin more, but because he loves Herbert less.

In 1864 and Now.
Topeka Capital.

Republicans who are quoting Abraham Lincoln's apothegm about swapping horses while crossing the stream have some ground for such a position in the present national campaign. Lincoln had not been successful in the war. He expected defeat in the November election in 1864. He was agreeably disappointed, due not to any special act of his own, but to "the fortunes of war," which turned favorably.

Hoover has carried on the war against depression in business. He has not won the war, but his efforts have been vigorous and a turn appears to have occurred of a favorable kind. Gloom is not as thick as it was. There are numerous signs of a new feeling of confidence that the worst is past. The parallel between this situation and Civil War in the sixties is not perfect, since nobody in 1864 could know whether the war would end favorably or unfavorably, whereas all know that sooner or later depression will give way to recovery and good times.

Norris Under False Colors.
Kansas City Star.

The sincerity of Senator Norris, of Nebraska, is unquestioned. He feels the policies he believes in are closer to those advocated by Gov. Roosevelt than to the Hoover program. Of course he is perfectly justified in following his convictions in support of the Democratic nominee.

The Nebraska senator has given long and patient effort to bringing his party to his own views. He has failed. In two presidential campaigns he has taken the Democratic side. Under the rules of the game of politics he belongs in that party. In fairness, he should give up the Republican label.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I desire to bring to the attention of your many readers who are historically inclined, a most interesting and instructive booklet by an American author and copyrighted recently by Teresa O. de Prevost. It is entitled "John Witherspoon—Signer of the Declaration of Independence—George Washington's Close Friend and Sponsor." While we are in the midst of the George Washington Bicentennial celebration, the author happily expresses a verity when she says: "The life of John Witherspoon stands out like a beacon on the highway of history and supplies one of the most illuminating and interesting phases of the American Revolution." At the dedication of the monument to his memory between the junction of Connecticut avenue and Eighteenth street northwest, opposite the Church of the Covenant, President Wilson said as part of his memorable address: "He, more assiduously than any other member, continued to lend his counsel throughout the Revolutionary War, and no man in it represented so consistently as he did the wise counsel which was necessary to sustain that difficult and sometimes discouraging contest."

We can not be too well informed concerning this most eminent Scot-American. His courage, faith and fortitude never forsook him, and of him it can be said truthfully "the gravity and stillness of his youth the world hath noted and his name is great in mouths of wisest censure."

CHARLES PORTERFIELD LIGHT,
Former Secretary, Sons of the Revolution.

Roosevelt Supporter Expects Him to Be Elected by Aid of Republican Voters.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The election of Franklin D. Roosevelt is probable for two reasons: First, public resentment toward the administration's failure to cope satisfactorily with the depression, and second, the fact that the Democrats had sense enough to nominate a strong candidate. I have heard Republicans express the opinion that had not Roosevelt been nominated, even public disapproval of the administration would not have been strong enough to overturn the normal Republican majority.

A noticeable and enlightening feature of this campaign of 1932 is the proclivity of voters to abandon party fidelity and vote for candidates. This is an encouraging sign. Two major parties are necessary in order that one may serve as a check on the other, but for huge armies of voters to register as slaves to one or the other of these parties is unfortunate and does not indicate a progressive outlook on their part. The drift this year will far exceed the normal year, and if Roosevelt is elected, he will have to receive votes from many thousands of persons who cast their votes for Hoover in 1928. From all indications, many Republicans are prepared to do just that, and they should be commended for their patriotism and desire to serve the common good.

"ROOSEVELT BOOSTER."

Voter Would Like to Know If Mr. Garner Will Stand by His House Record If Elected.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now that the world series is over and the campaign is waxing warm, I think the public would like to hear a few remarks from Jack Garner. We must remember that his is a double-barreled campaign, for should he fail in obtaining the Vice Presidency, he still will have a chance to hold his place in Congress.

In his speeches heretofore Mr. Garner has been frank and outspoken. It is about time for him to come out and state just where he stands on all the important issues. If he continues to keep his opinions from the voters, it certainly will not help his cause. The voters want to know a little more about this man from Uvalde, Tex. He took a rather definite stand on certain issues in Congress as Speaker of the House, but will he take a similar stand if elected Vice President?

VOTER.

California Republican Admired Gov. Roosevelt's Oratory, but Found His Speeches Vague.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I call your attention to the following letter to the New York Times from a Republican in San Francisco:

"I venture to think that Gov. Roosevelt has not helped his cause by his Western tour. I thought his speeches admirable from an oratorical standpoint, but in other respects they seemed vague and nebulous. He appeared to think that the economic depression was limited to America and that it had its origin in the misdeeds of President Hoover and the Republican party. A clever Russian friend of mine who heard Gov. Roosevelt expressed the opinion that his speech was the kind listened to on street corners in Leningrad in 1919, 'when everything was promised to us. We were made to believe that under the new regime a millennium would begin.'"

Michigan Democrats Straddle on the Bonus, but Gov. Roosevelt Silent.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Roosevelt can not be accused of straddling on the bonus question, because he is ignoring the question entirely. Let us take a look into the Michigan Democratic platform. It is the straddle of all straddles regarding the payment of the bonus. The platform says: "We favor payment to veterans in full, in cash." When is this intended to be paid, "in full" and "in cash?" The majority of the taxpayers throughout the country intend that the bonus shall be paid in cash and in full, but not at the present time—not until it is due in 1945. W. F. A.

TYDINGS SPEAKER AT LA PLATA RALLY

Holds Hoover Accountable for Failure to Warn of Slump's Approach.

La Plata, Md., Oct. 6.—Pointing out that the economic depression in America is too great to be blamed on any one man, but that President Hoover, for his failure to warn the country of its approach when he took office, stands indicted as lacking proper qualities of leadership, Senator Millard E. Tydings said this afternoon at a Democratic rally attended by more than 500 Charles County voters.

Representative Stephen W. Gambrill, of the Fifth Maryland District, who with Tydings is up for reelection, said little about his own candidacy, but told his listeners of the shortcomings of the Republican administration and urged their support of Gov. Roosevelt.

Thomas P. McDonagh, chairman of the Charles County Democratic committee, presided, while Walter J. Mitchell, State Senator, introduced the speakers. The speakers were guests of Mr. Mitchell at luncheon with F. Brooke Matthews, member of the Maryland Legislature; W. Bruce Matthews, State tobacco inspector; William E. Carley, J. Reed Bailey, James Craik Mitchell and Mr. McDonagh.

Winter's Advance Guard Raids Dixie

Unseasonable Cold Felt in Cities as Far South as Florida.

Atlanta, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—The South got cold feet today as a bit of winter slipped in behind a blusterous wind and then held its own against a bright sun. New low records for such an early date were set at Mobile, Ala., and Appalachicola, Fla., and the sunny South generally was about 20 degrees colder than New York or Boston.

Little Rock, where winter winds play around the Arkansas River, reported a low of 38 today and possible frost was predicted for northwest Florida tonight. The Miami Weather Bureau said that city might get a minimum of 55 tonight. Tampa turned in a 60 last night and was 8 degrees cooler than far-away Boston. Pensacola had a 42 last night and Appalachicola a 46.

There was no freezing weather reported, but it was mighty uncomfortable and decidedly out of season. Some lows reported this morning include: Atlanta, 42; Mobile, 44; Shreveport, 42; Louisville, 38; Chattanooga, 46; Nashville, 42; Memphis, 42; Montgomery, 42; New Orleans, 50; Birmingham, 42; Meridian, 40; Asheville, 42; Raleigh 54.

Bar Group to Hear 2 Hoover Speeches

President to Speak Before Opening Session and at Stone Laying.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday arranged to deliver two addresses next week in the presence of members of the American Bar Association, who will convene here Wednesday in annual convention.

He will speak at the opening session, and on the following day at the corner stone laying of the new United States Supreme Court Building, in which ceremony the association will participate. The President received the Justices of the Supreme Court in the Blue Room of the White House yesterday afternoon.

Their scheduled visit to the White House last Monday was postponed because of the President's departure for Des Moines. Attorney General Mitchell and Solicitor General Thomas Thacher took part in the Blue Room meeting.

3 Guards and 2 Inmates Held in Dynamite Plot

Detroit, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Three guards and two inmates of the Michigan State Prison at Jackson, together with a sister of one inmate and a woman friend of another, were detained here tonight while police and prison officials questioned them concerning a purported prison escape plot in which dynamite was to be used.

The guards, Archie C. French, Ernest W. Stanton and Kenneth Watson, and the prisoners, Edward Cross and James Hall, alias Overstreet, were brought to suburban Dearborn following the arrest there Wednesday of Mary Agnes Cross, sister of Edward, and Mrs. Agnes Schoonmaker, friend of James Hall. Police said they found dynamite, guns and ammunition and letters referring to the escape plot in the home of the women.

Willow Tree at Tomb Of Hardings Is Dying

Marion, Ohio, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—The weeping willow tree inside the Harding Memorial—its branches forming a canopy over the graves of President and Mrs. Harding—is dying. Within the year, Hoke Donithen, Harding Memorial Association secretary, said today, it probably will have to be removed.

Although no definite plans have been made, Donithen said the willow likely will be taken out next spring and replaced. The tree was planted when the late President's body was removed from Marion Cemetery to the tomb six years ago. Although it apparently had a healthy growth, tree surgeons have informed officers of the association that it can not be saved.

Huey Long Suggested As Cotton Drive Head

Atlanta, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Agitation for joint action by all Southern States to raise the price of cotton, which was carried on last year without tangible results, was renewed here today at a conference between Eugene Talmadge, Georgia commissioner of agriculture and governor-designate, and J. E. McDonald, Texas commissioner of agriculture.

They suggested in a joint statement that Senator Huey P. Long, former Governor of Louisiana, "who has evidenced his interest in the welfare of the cotton farmer in the past, now appears to be the logical man to assemble representatives of the cotton States to formulate some plan of uniform action with the hope of possible congressional aid."

RENT THE VACANT ROOMS with a POST WANT AD

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

EDITOR SMITH SPEAKS UP.

My position you've been anxiously awaiting.
In the matter of a ruler for the land;
After months of somber study I am ready
To declare myself so all will understand
Lend an ear and hark intently to my verdict:
'Tis the Democratic ticket I indorse—
I am for the nominees of the convention,
But I can not tell you who they are, of course.

II.

On the Democratic party all the people
Must depend to set the stricken nation right;
As a Democratic leader I am certain
That the prospects of the party now are bright;
Vote the Democratic ticket in November—
To do otherwise would constitute a shame—
I am for the party candidates, dear people,
But I simply can't refer to 'em by name!

III.

It's my verdict that a change is badly needed
In the guidance of the noble ship of state;
I believe without the shadow of a doubt that
Herbert Hoover is about to get the gate.
Give the Democrats your full cooperation,
Give the nominee the credit that is his;
I will vote for him upon election morning—
If I happen to remember who he is!

IV.

We are in a time of hardship and misfortune
(And I ask you who should know it more than I);
For my guidance many Democrats are looking,
So to help them do the right thing I will try;
I can hardly urge my friends to vote for Hoover—
(To indorse him I, of course, would hesitate),
So I guess you'd better vote the party ticket—
Who is running on it, though, I can not state.

V.

There are elements within our noble party
Which distress me to the ultimate degree;
It must purge itself of these annoying persons
If it ever wants red-hot support from me;
Still, I feel it is my sacred obligation
To advise my dear old party what to do,
So I say stand by its nominees, and, mister,
I would tell you who they are if I but knew!

VI.

I have thought the matter over through the summer,
And I've thought the matter over through the fall;
And I'd think the matter over through the winter
If I could without escaping censure tall;
There's a chance to put the Democrats in power,
So I think that Democratic you must go;
If you want to know who's running call up central—
Ask for "Information"; maybe she will know!

THE ULTIMATE.

IMA DODO says she has a boy friend so tough that in the summer he works in Spanish rings throwing out the first bull.

NOW THAT THAT'S SETTLED—

Now that the world series is over the comparatively minor question of the best man for the Presidency of the United States can be taken up again.

School Construction Program Is Submitted

A schedule setting forth the proposed school construction program was forwarded yesterday to District school officials by the municipal architect's office. Plans call for the completion of nine school projects, most of which are under construction, by the opening of the 1934 fall term.

These are: Harrison School addition, to open February 1; Giddings School addition, February 25; Business High School remodeling, January 1; approaches to Roosevelt High School, January 1; Crummel School addition, May 1; Foxhall Village School, not yet under contract, July 20; Taft Junior High School, August 18; Bancroft addition, August 15; Keene School, July 20. The proposed trade school for boys has not yet been put under contract. An appropriation of $315,000 is available for the project.

Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

PRESIDENT HOOVER is scheduled to deliver a 40-minute address from the Cabinet room in the White House this afternoon (WRC, 3:15 o'clock).

Municipal, national and international politics will be reviewed when the "March of Time" is broadcast over WMAL at 7:30 o'clock. One re-enactment will be concerned with President Hoover's invasion this week of the farm belt. Another scene will be devoted to the complicated state of affairs in New York City.

Radio will pay tribute to the memory of Edgar Allan Poe during a special program to be broadcast over WRC at midnight, said to be the poet's favorite time for writing his gruesome tales. Edmond Kowalewski, young Polish-American poet and protege of Stokowski, will read Poe's poems.

Morton Downey's high tenor again will be heard as a regular feature over WMAL when he returns to radio as the star of "To the Ladies" (WMAL, 9:30 o'clock) tonight, accompanied by Leon Belasco's orchestra.

THE Hoover cheers at Des Moines were captured and are available for rebroadcasting, the White House has been informed. The entire Hoover address—nearly two hours long—was taken down on one of the new flexible records in New York City. "The test was a great success," an official of the Flexible Record Corporation reports. "The cheers—in fact the President's entire speech—are naturally reproduced. It sounds as well to the listener as if he were actually sitting in the hall."

High lights from two college football games of outstanding interest last Saturday—the Navy-William and Mary contest and the Northwestern-Missouri game—will be recreated during the "All-America Football Show" (WMAL, 9:30 p. m.). A. Alonzo Stagg, University of Chicago coach, will be interviewed by Christy Walsh.

Henry Sacks and his radio orchestra, of Baltimore, will be heard in a special concert over WOL at 8:15 o'clock tonight.

HARRY RESER and his Eskimos will go collegiate for the football season, with the songs and marches of Yale set for the broadcast tonight (WRC, 9 o'clock).

Arthur Tracy's version of the famous Hebrew chant, "Kol Nidre," will be presented during the "Music That Satisfies" period tonight (WMAL, 9 o'clock).

Tolstoi's "Redemption" will be the Radio Guild dramatization over WRC at 4:15 o'clock today.

The District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs is sponsoring a new series of programs (WMAL, 10:45 a. m.), under the direction of Mrs. Helen M. Hunter.

IN keeping with the spirit of National College Song Week, the University of Arkansas "Razorback Rootin' Song" will be included by Capt. Taylor Branson on the program by the United States Marine Band (WRC, 11 a. m.).

Economy Groups Merged.

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—The veterans' committee for reducing the cost of peace announced today that it had merged with the National Economy League "with the object of solidifying and giving expression to the opposition of World War veterans to the immediate payment of the bonus."

METHODISTS REPORT GAIN IN MEMBERSHIP

Baltimore Southern Parley Discusses Disposition of Official Paper.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 6.—Reports of continued growth in the past year, both in financial quotas and church membership, throughout the Baltimore Southern Methodist Conference, were made here today by ministers of the district to the annual conference in Braddock Street Methodist Church South.

With Bishop W. F. McMurry, of Fayette, Mo., presiding, the principal item of business was the report on stewardship. The presiding elders of several districts, reporting for their ministers, declared every church in their domain showed an increase in membership during 1931-32. In about 50 per cent of the churches, financial quotas were oversubscribed, while in the other half of the congregations the quotas had deficits of from 15 to 50 per cent.

Discussion was renewed on disposition of the official conference paper, the Baltimore Southern Methodist. A plan was recommended to the committee on church literature whereby the Rev. Dr. N. B. Harmon, of Baltimore, editor of the paper, would be removed to regular pastoral work and a minister in or around Baltimore appointed to look after the editorial duties of the paper on part-time basis. This plan, it was explained, would reduce editorial expense from $9,500 to $4,000. The plan will be voted on by the committee tonight.

The Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, of Alexandria, who was injured in an automobile accident at Millwood, 12 miles east of here, yesterday while en route to the conference, returned to his home today. He was said to be suffering from lacerations, bruises and nervous shock.

The conference closed today with a laymen's session in Braddock Church, with M. L. Walton, jr., of Woodstock, Va., in charge, and a sermon by the Rev. George Wesley Jones, of Danville, The Rev. J. C. Copenhaver, pastor of Epworth Southern Methodist Church, Washington, D. C., led the round table discussion of laymen's activities in the church.

Peanut Vendor Runs Afoul of Theft Charge

J. C. Smith, 818 Nineteenth street northwest, was a very aggrieved person when a man he knew as Eugene T. Whitehead, to whom he had entrusted a basket of peanuts, failed to return either money or the peanuts.

Therefore, when he saw "Whitehead" pass his shop yesterday he hailed a policeman and had Whitehead arrested. The case was not so simple as a mere arrest, though, for Whitehead attempted to outrun the officer. He was fined $35 on charges of petit larceny and intoxication in Police Court yesterday.

New Sao Paulo Head Installed.

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Waldomiro Lima has assumed office as military governor of Sao Paulo state, where rebel forces surrendered this week, the government was informed today. He was appointed by President Vargas. All military forces in the region will be under his control as well as the government. Army men describe him as a "stiff disciplinarian."

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.

"LIBRA."

If October 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this day are from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 1:30 p. m. to 3 p. m. and after 10:30 p. m. The danger hours are from 6:30 a. m. to 8 a. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

Forces will be active on this day tending to make it appear long and tedious. It will be a day of inactivity, and those problems that do come up for settlement will appear to be of a particularly perplexing nature. Things will seem to pick up in the late afternoon, and while the movement will be sluggish, the day's business will so shape itself as to lend itself to easy and satisfactory solution during the ensuing days.

Children born on October 7 should prove themselves to be cheerful little sprites, and a delight to have around the house. They will be of buoyant spirit and will naturally attract much attention. They are easily spoiled and easily flattered, and care must be exercised to protect them from these influences.

People born on October 7 will probably find themselves possessed of attractive and magnetic personalities which should win for them any number of fast friends. You are enthusiastic, and are able to infect others with your enthusiasm. These qualities would tend to stamp you as a leader, but to offset this seems to be the fact that while you can get any number of individuals to follow you into some enterprise, or to support you in some venture, you have not the "stick-to-itiveness" to see it through to the very end. There are dangers in such a procedure, and if not careful you may find yourself losing many friends because of your "about faces."

You are a splendid mixer, a convincing talker, and a good raconteur of stories. You are not a good organizer, but you would quickly adapt yourself to some field of endeavor where you could lend your talents to the convincing of others. Fundamentally you are a sincere person, but this is largely offset by the fact that you are superficial in your study of any situation or set of facts, and may seek to influence others on the basis of your not too thorough study of the situation. You are honest, kind hearted, and attractive to the opposite sex.

Successful people born October 7:

Henry Rutgers, patriot and philanthropist.

Kate J. Bateman, actress.

Bronson Howard, dramatist.

Eleanor Kirk Ames, author.

Horace White, former Governor of New York.

Police Release Suspect In Rum Hijacking Case

James Francis Moore was released by Washington police yesterday after Federal dry agents had failed to positively identify him as one of fourteen men who hijacked a load of liquor and kidnaped four agents several weeks ago in southern Maryland.

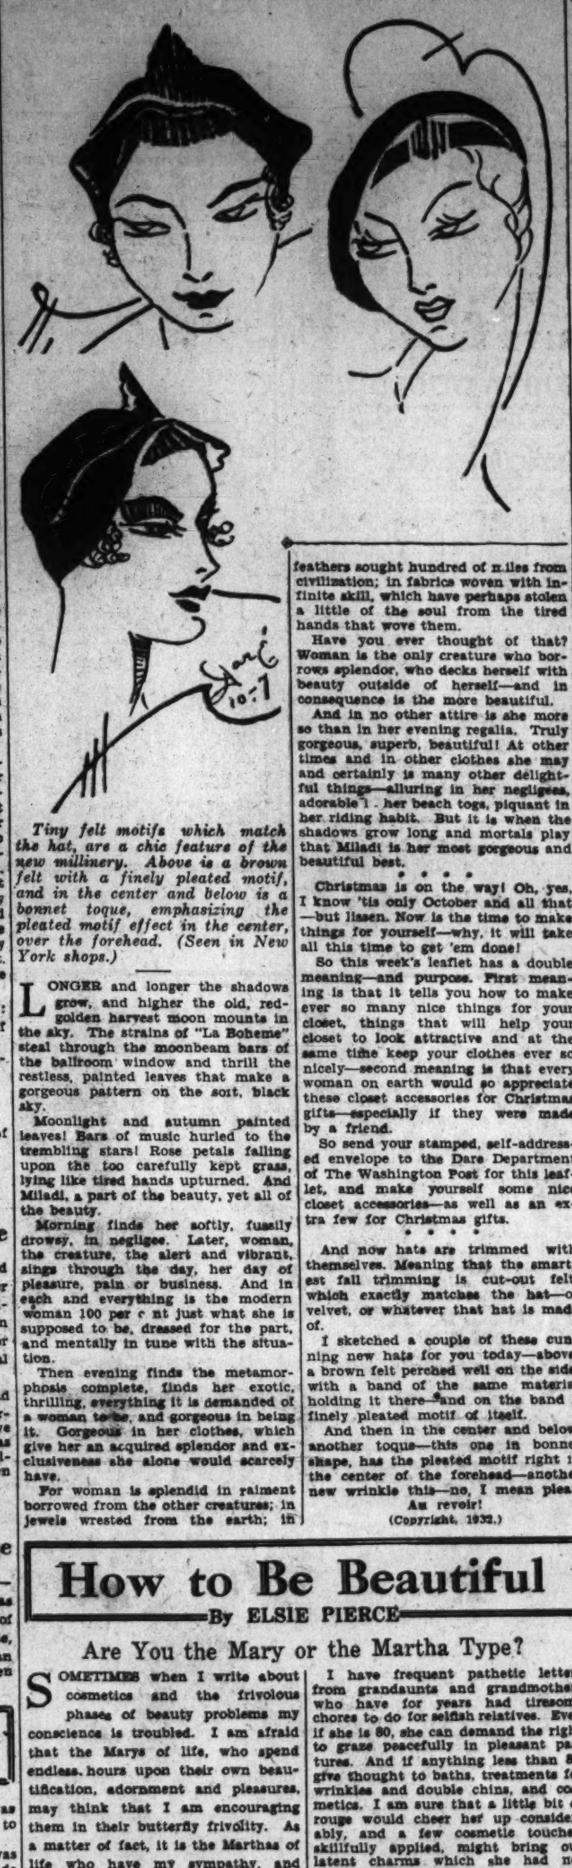
Moore, who said he was 32 and lived at a downtown hotel, was arrested early Wednesday by Detective Larry O'Dea. Yesterday he was viewed by the agents, who have already identified two Washington men as being among the hijackers.

Confederate Navy Flag Is Presented to College

Williamsburg, Va., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—A Confederate navy battle flag has been presented to the College of William and Mary by Charles Poole, of Bryantville, Mass., aged veteran of the Northern forces. It has been placed in the college library.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE



Tiny felt motifs which match the hat, are a chic feature of the new millinery. Above is a brown felt with a finely pleated motif, and in the center and below is a bonnet toque, emphasizing the pleated motif effect in the center, over the forehead. (Seen in New York shops.)

Longer and longer the shadows grow, and higher the old, red-golden harvest moon mounts in the sky. The strains of "La Boheme" steal through the moonbeam bars of the ballroom window and thrill the restless, painted leaves that make a gorgeous pattern on the soft, black sky.

Moonlight and autumn painted leaves! Bars of music hurled to the trembling stars! Rose petals falling upon the too carefully kept grass, lying like tired hands upturned. And Miladi, a part of the beauty, yet all of the beauty.

Morning finds her softly, fussily drowsy, in negligee. Later, woman, the creature, the alert and vibrant, sings through the day, her day of pleasure, pain or business. And in each and everything is the modern woman 100 per c nt just what she is supposed to be, dressed for the part, and mentally in tune with the situation.

Then evening finds the metamorphosis complete, finds her exotic, thrilling, everything it is demanded of a woman to be, and gorgeous in being it. Gorgeous in her clothes, which give her an acquired splendor and exclusiveness she alone would scarcely have.

For woman is splendid in raiment borrowed from the other creatures; in jewels wrested from the earth; in feathers sought hundred of miles from civilization; in fabrics woven with infinite skill, which have perhaps stolen a little of the soul from the tired hands that wove them.

Have you ever thought of that? Woman is the only creature who borrows splendor, who decks herself with beauty outside of herself—and in consequence is the more beautiful.

And in no other attire is she more so than in her evening regalia. Truly gorgeous, superb, beautiful! At other times and in other clothes she may and certainly is many other delightful things—alluring in her negligees, adorable in her beach togs, piquant in her riding habit. But it is when the shadows grow long and mortals play that Miladi is her most gorgeous and beautiful best.

* * * *

Christmas is on the way! Oh, yes, I know 'tis only October and all that—but listen. Now is the time to make things for yourself—why, it will take all this time to get 'em done!

So this week's leaflet has a double meaning—and purpose. First meaning is that it tells you how to make ever so many nice things for your closet, things that will help your closet to look attractive and at the same time keep your clothes ever so nicely—second meaning is that every woman on earth would so appreciate these closet accessories for Christmas gifts—especially if they were made by a friend.

So send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this leaflet, and make yourself some nice closet accessories—as well as an extra few for Christmas gifts.

* * * *

And now hats are trimmed with themselves. Meaning that the smartest fall trimming is cut-out felt, which exactly matches the hat—or velvet, or whatever that hat is made of.

I sketched a couple of these cunning new hats for you today—above, a brown felt perched well on the side, with a band of the same material holding it there—and on the band a finely pleated motif of itself.

And then in the center and below, another toque—this one in bonnet shape, has the pleated motif right in the center of the forehead—another new wrinkle this—no, I mean pleat.

Au revoir!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

DANGEROUS FUMIGATION.

A WAY of testing air for the presence of hydrocyanic gas has been found. A surgeon in the U. S. Public Health Service devised a solution which is used to saturate paper. This paper is dried and then cut into strips. When the air of a room is to be tested for this very poisonous gas a few strips of this test paper are thrown into the room. They are watched from a distance—perhaps through a window. A change in the color of the paper readily noted at a distance of more than 20 feet means that the air thereabouts contains fatal proportions of the poisonous gases.

Probably before the next war between highly civilized nations similar simple tests for many poison gases will have been devised. It is the common opinion that poison gases will be extensively used in that war, when it comes, and that civilian populations must have means of detection of them and protection against them.

Meanwhile the chemical paper test for this poisonous gas is needed by those who use the gas to kill rats, bedbugs, and sometimes mosquitoes. This gas is very much the most effective fumigant against these pestiferous animals and insects, but so dangerous is it that none dare to use it except the experienced. The writer has seen health department inspectors go forth with their supply of chemicals to fumigate rat-infested houses, a proper function for those departments when plague is threatening.

The inspectors knew how to do the job, how to seal the house, to produce the poison gas, and then to get rid of it after it had done its work. But even in the hands of these somewhat trained men the job was regarded as rather too hazardous. Probably these inspectors were not regarded as good life insurance risks. In recent years much of the business of fumigating houses with this gas has fallen into the hands of business concerns generally working under city license and employing trained men.

The U. S. Public Health Service fumigates ships for the purpose of destroying rats, since rat-infested vessels are the principal agency in spreading plague. For this purpose, liquid hydrocyanic gas is thrown by compressed air into the holds of ships. The men who do the work are trained and experienced and they wear gas masks. They find use for these detector papers.

HOW TO TREAT ATHLETE'S FOOT.

M. E. C. writes: Will you please tell me what is the quickest and surest cure for athlete's foot? What is the cause of it?

REPLY.

Now, here you are, about to break your neck hurrying to hear about athlete's foot, a disease that has been the favorite topic of conversation for three years. Where have you been? Also, why your hurry? You may have had it for years and you may have it for years more.

Athlete's foot is a form of ringworm and is due to a fungus. The fungus lives around the nails and in thick skin, and on the leather of shoes. It is liable to set up inflammation in warm, moist areas such as the spaces between the toes.

The parasite is killed by sulphur, carbol fuchsin, and other chemicals. There are many remedies on the market and all, or most, are efficient. To cure up the inflamed places is generally easy.

Permanent cure is not so easy because people are not persistent. They do not kill off the parasites around the nails, in the thickened skin, and possibly in the shoes.

WHEN DOG DAYS BEGIN.

Mrs. D. O. writes: Just when do the dog days begin and how long do they last? Would you tell us something concerning them—both real and traditional.

REPLY.

The dog days are usually supposed to begin July 3 and end August 11. During about this period the dog star rises with the sun. Generally speaking, it is the hottest six weeks of the year. There is no basis for the folklore stories about the relation of the dog days to health. If the weather is very hot during that time there may be some increase in the diseases charged up to hot weather. Otherwise not.

Since July and August were very sickly months in the long ago, the dog days had a bad name. Now that health departments, physicians, and the people have made the hot season healthful, abuse of the dog days is not often heard.

HOT FLASHES.

Mrs. F. M. O. writes: I think you wrote a while ago that it was not necessary now for middle-aged women to suffer the tortures of hot flashes. I am a great sufferer in this respect and, although I have tried several different remedies, I can get no relief. Can you help?

2. Also, will you give diet list for too alkaline a condition of the blood?

REPLY.

1. If you use some ovarian extract properly you will get relief. There are different ways to use it and many preparations to choose from. The symptom is self-limited.

2. Eat fewer potatoes and other vegetables and fewer bananas and other fruit. Eat more fats, cereals, breads and meats. Corn, peas and beans are among the few vegetables that make against alkalinity.

PINK WASH CLOTHS.

W. W. C. writes: When my husband bathes face and neck there is a pinkish, yellowish coloring on the rag. What causes this? This condition has existed for three or four years.

REPLY.

Whatever the cause, this may be important from the health standpoint. It may be due to exposure to some pigmented dust. Or the cause may be some harmless colored fungus growing on the skin. In jaundice bile may be secreted by the skin. But nothing in your letter points to jaundice.

MAY BE POISON IVY.

V. M. O. writes: Every summer I am troubled with an itching on my hands and especially my fingers. Tiny water pimples or blisters form from scratching. Do you think it is salt rheum?

REPLY.

Salt rheum was an old term with no clear cut meaning, and it has fallen into disuse. There are several possibilities. My guess is that you have poison ivy. If so, wash your hands in gasoline (not the kind that contains lead), or in a watery solution of chloride of iron, or of ferrous sulphate.

Among other causes are exposure to certain dyes and chemicals.

Dahomey Heir-Apparent Weds.

Paris, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Roberta Dodd-Crawford, Negro concert singer of Chicago, was married today in a civil ceremony to Prince Kojo Touvalou Houenou, heir-apparent to the vacant throne of Dahomey in French West Africa. They will go to Africa for the religious service with traditional rites of the former Dahomey royalty. The bridegroom is a nephew of the dethroned King Behanzin.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

WHEN CHILD IS HURT.

(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

A break in the skin should be cleaned thoroughly with boiled water, mild soap and a piece of freshly boiled cotton or linen cloth. The injured place may be painted with fresh tincture of iodine and washed off with alcohol and a sterile bandage applied. Never seal a scrape or a cut with collodion nor with adhesive plaster.

A bruise is usually best treated by the application of cold wet cloths. No dressing is necessary.

A broken bone or a sprain should be cared for by a doctor. Temporarily a broken limb may be supported by means of any homemade splint, or a pillow, bound on in such a way as to keep it from moving. Never put on a bandage tightly. In case of a sprain, cold applications may be comforting in some cases for temporary relief of pain, hot applications in others.

A nosebleed can usually be stopped by cold applications to the nose and pressure against the bone on the upper lip just at the outer side of each nostril. A child who has had a severe nosebleed should keep quiet, so that the bleeding may not start again.

Mild burns are best treated by applying a simple oil or ointment or a solution of baking soda on a clean smooth cloth, preferably linen.

A child who has been extensively or deeply burned should always be treated in a hospital if possible, since such burns are frequently fatal and need the most expert care available. If there is any delay in getting a doctor or in getting the child to a hospital, remember that it is of the greatest importance to keep him warm and to give him large amounts of water to drink. The burn should be kept uncovered if possible, but if it is necessary to cover it, a clean smooth dressing of old linen or cotton cloth kept very wet with freshly prepared tea, very strong, which has been cooled to body temperature, gives great relief. Dressings wet with baking-soda solution may also be used. Do not use absorbent cotton, as it sticks to the wound.

A child usually chokes because something has gotten from the mouth accidentally into the larynx (voice box) or trachea (windpipe). If he is held head downward and slapped on the back, the foreign body will usually fall out. If relief is not prompt, a doctor's help should be sought at once.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

Are You the Mary or the Martha Type?

Sometimes when I write about cosmetics and the frivolous phases of beauty problems my conscience is troubled. I am afraid that the Marys of life, who spend endless hours upon their own beautification, adornment and pleasures, may think that I am encouraging them in their butterfly frivolity. As a matter of fact, it is the Marthas of life who have my sympathy, and whom I am most anxious to help.

I need not tell Mary how to beautify herself, she knows how, instinctively. But I do want to talk to Martha. Perhaps Martha is a young girl who has assumed all the burden of the family. There may be many good and impelling reasons for her servitude. But everyone is entitled to her own individuality and to her own share of health, beauty and happiness—whether she serves as sister, daughter, wife or mother. If she does not claim it, she is not only laying up unhappiness for herself, but she is laying up unhappiness for her family, for selfish people are never really contented. Demand that others assume their share of responsibility in order that her overburdened self may have, daily, some free time for pursuit of her own health, happiness and beauty.

Every girl, every woman, is entitled to the time necessary for perfecting the daintiness of body and dress. She does not want to slump into a mere plough horse. Even the most blooded race horse of Kentucky would be unfitted for the Derby if constantly used for ploughing! And only Martha's mistaken sense of duty has caused her to permit herself to be turned into a plough horse, but it is never too late to rebel and throw off the yoke!

I have frequent pathetic letters from grandaunts and grandmothers who have for years had tiresome chores to do for selfish relatives. Even if she is 80, she can demand the right to graze peacefully in pleasant pastures. And if anything less than 80, give thought to baths, treatments for wrinkles and double chins, and cosmetics. I am sure that a little bit of rouge would cheer her up considerably, and a few cosmetic touches, skillfully applied, might bring out latent charms which she had not dreamed she possessed. And she would be so much happier if she found that she possessed them! For Martha, regardless of long servitude, is a Woman!

And Mary, as I said in the beginning, does not need my advice. She will still continue to paint a too cupid bow on her mouth and to preen and groom that beauty which is beloved of all men. If you are the Martha type, let me help you with bulletins on any phase of beauty that may be worrying you.

TRUSTING PARTNER.

Opening psychic bids have a certain vogue with some very strong players. They are, however, extremely dangerous attacking measures, particularly when partner rather than opponents happens to hold the balance of strength in the hands. The psychic bidder then finds it extremely difficult to convey to partner a correct picture of his holdings, and frequently is in doubt as to the course he should pursue at any pivotal point in the bidding.

However, sometimes even a game can be built upon an entirely psychic foundation, as, for instance, the following, which was played recently in a Duplicate game in New York City, the North player at one table being Mr. Edward Hymes, jr., and his partner in the South being Mr. Samuel Fry, jr.

North—Dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

	♠ 10 9 8 ♡ J 9 5 ◇ 10 4 ♣ A 10 6 5 2
♠ 2 ♡ 10 8 6 3 2 ◇ Q 9 6 5 2 ♣ J 3		♠ A Q 5 4 ♡ A 7 4 ◇ 8 3 ♣ Q 9 8 7
	♠ K J 7 6 3 ♡ K Q - ◇ A K J 7 ♣ K 4

The bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

North	East	South	West
1♣(1)	1♠	Double(2)	Pass
2♣(3)	Pass	2NT(4)	Pass
3NT(5)	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) A purely psychic Opening, hoping to confuse the opponents who, he feared, might hold the preponderance of strength.

(2) At this time South did not know that his partner's bid was psychic, although, with 4½ honor-tricks and a vulnerable Overcall of the Opening bid, he had reason to be suspicious of his partner's holding.

(3) This disclosed the psychic. If North prefers to play for a part-score in clubs rather than attempt to defeat an opposing vulnerable bid, then his hand must be well nigh trickless.

(4) This bid disclosed a very strong hand and a willingness to play for game if North held anything except a worthless hand.

(5) After all, North did hold an Ace and honors, even though unimportant, in the other suits. His partner had refused to permit him to play for a part-score when his attempt to do so was evident, and thus the Raise to game was justified.

In the play of this hand game was readily made. West opened the spade deuce and East played the Queen, which was won with the King. Actually, the play of the spade suit is entirely immaterial as East can win but 1 trick, regardless of the manner in which the cards are played. South returned a spade and East refused to cash the Ace until the third round and then returned a spade, the Declarer winning. The diamond Knave was then led, which West won with the Queen. West now made the correct shift to the Knave of clubs, which South won in his hand with the King and led a low diamond to the Ten in Dummy, laying the foundation for the eventual end-play. South now led the Knave of hearts from Dummy, and East, who read the play as a possible finesse against the Queen, did not play the Ace. The trick was won with the King, and the remaining spade and diamonds cashed. At the end, East was in a difficult situation, and could not retain a guard to the club Queen and also the heart Ace. Eventually the heart Ace was discarded, and the last tricks were taken with the heart Queen and the club Ace.

North, after his psychic Opening bid, had risen to brilliant heights by his bid of three notrump, and South had justified his partner's confidence by his accurate play.

Tomorrow's Hand.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

	♠ 10 8 6 5 2 ♡ A Q 5 ◇ A 3 ♣ A J 4
♠ J 7 ♡ J 10 8 2 ◇ K J 6 2 ♣ Q 8 3		♠ Q 9 ♡ 7 4 3 ◇ Q 10 9 7 4 ♣ 10 6 5
	♠ A K 4 3 ♡ K 9 6 ◇ 8 5 ♣ K 9 7 2

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

WHILE perhaps not one of the celluloid Cinderellas, there is one young woman recently become prominent among the featured players who has never appeared in what is technically known as a "bit" or as an extra, during her brief but quite remarkable motion picture career. Gloria Stuart, heroine of "The All - American," opening today at the Rialto, has been in films less than six months, but nevertheless is one of the busiest actresses in Hollywood today.

Gloria Stuart.

It seems that at the time when James Whale, the director, who first leaped to fame with a fine picturization of "Journey's End," wanted a feminine lead for "The Old Dark House," Carl Laemmle, jr., pointed out the then recently signed Gloria Stuart. Perhaps because of her very natural and unaffected appearance and demeanor, Whale thought Miss Stuart could do the job. As the finished product conclusively demonstrated, the guess couldn't have been better.

On a "loan" to Warner Brothers, Gloria next appeared in "Street of Women." Then came "Air Mail," with Ralph Bellamy, Pat O'Brien and Lillian Bond, not seen in Washington because not as yet released. While this was being completed Gloria Stuart was summoned to assume the most important role of her career to date, that of heroine in "The All-American," opposite Richard Arlen.

The difficulty of the role is said to lie in the fact that while she is the picture's nearest approach to a heroine, she is not heroic, if you get the idea. Her triumph comes about through restraint, self-repression and the deft and gentle guidance of Mr. Arlen to his ultimate victory. In spite of this requirement of the part, Miss Stuart's is reputed to be the dominant feminine personality in the picture, notwithstanding the presence in the cast of that revivified and glamorous redhead, Marna Kennedy, and the blonde and vivacious Jun. Clyde.

A two weeks' vacation, which followed completion of the football opus, Miss Stuart devoted to playing a guest star engagement in the Pasadena Community Playhouse, where she was first discovered by the junior Laemmle while playing a debut performance in "The Sea Gull."

Now then, was that a postman's holiday, or was it a postman's holiday?

Comes then to hand for "immediate release," the following:

"With the premiere of the film, 'Washington Merry-Go-Round,' at the New Theater in Baltimore, September 30, the following statement appeared in the Baltimore papers, headed 'Denial:'

"'The film Washington Merry-Go-Round has no connection whatsoever with the book, Washington Merry-Go-Round, aside from the title. The authors of the book had no connection with the film to be shown at the New Theater and gave no permission for any part or parts of the book to be used. (Signed) The Authors of Washington Merry-Go-Round.'"

Continuing, the bulletin further sets forth:

"The authors of 'Washington Merry-Go-Round' take this further opportunity of calling to the attention of theatrical and motion picture editors the fact that their book and the recent (sic) film are to be completely divorced. The picture, they have been informed by the its producers, was filmed only after Columbia Pictures had received word from the White House that the President had no objection. (Signed) The Authors of 'Washington Merry-Go-Round' and 'More Merry-Go-Round.'"

I am beginning to suspect from all this that the film, "Washington Merry-Go-Round," and the book, "Washington Merry-Go-Round," are not precisely one and the same; in fact, that they are a couple of other fellows, entirely!

Nevertheless, Fred Marshall, special representative of Columbia, recently in town on behalf of both "The Night Mayor" and "That's My Boy," opening today at RKO-Keith's, assures me that the gelatine "Washington Merry-Go-Round," regardless of any resemblance is may, or may not, bear to the book, is a swell fillum. The title, in case we have neglected to mention it, is "Washington Merry-Go-Round!"

Since you can't sleep these mornings, anyway, it may be of interest that in anticipation of vast crowds that are expected to be attracted by the combination of Joan Bennett and Charlie Farrell in "Wild Girl," on the screen, and Jack Denny and his orchestra, on the stage, the box office at Loew's Fox will be thrown open this morning at 10:15, with the first showing of the feature scheduled to get under way at 10:40, practically the middle of the night.

With Miss Sunny Trowbridge already in her third week as mistress of ceremonies, the Club Michel announces that the new floor show at that popular Thomas Circle resort features Miss Mary McCord, whose voice has thrilled uncounted audiences over both the N. B. C. and Columbia networks. Miss McCord is available only for a brief engagement in the midst of a busy season. Pete Macias and his band, Marty Rubin, the songsmith, and all the other favorites continue to add zip to the nightly goings-on.

To avoid being trampled in the rush at the last minute, Manager Hardie Meakin, of RKO-Keith's, comes to bat with the information that already a special election night program is being arranged for his theater the night of Tuesday, November 8.

On the night of the big count and the bigger excitement a continuous performance will be kept in motion until it is definitely known who is elected President of these here now United States—the present Chief Executive, who knows, and has proved that he knows, what it is all about, or the transcontinental head-tosser, who is only guessing and very vaguely, at that.

The program will be made up of subjects sufficiently short to permit the prompt and accurate reading of up-to-the-minute returns, which, incidentally, will be furnished the theater through the complete and speedy facilities of The Washington Post.

Although the program for this important occasion will be appreciably augmented, there will be no advance in the regular scale of admission charges.

At the Rossdhu Castle Club tomorrow night, a special "theatrical night" will be observed. A floor show of half a dozen acts will be presented around the midnight hour, while a number of special guests whose names have appeared in electric lights over the local theaters will be introduced informally to those in attendance.

Johnny Slaughter and his Collegiate Musicians, who will play for the Rossdhu's Saturday night dances throughout the season, by the way, will furnish the rhythms for dancing. And Slaughter's rhythms are meticulous.

Or aren't you any good at arhythmetic, either!

20,000 MAY WATCH G. W. ELEVEN MEET ALABAMA

Dixie Squad To Arrive Today

Record Crowd Looms for Fray Tomorrow at Ball Park.

Crimson Tide Choice to Win; Fenlon Is G. W. Threat.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE Bicentennial Boys of George Washington University will attempt the most heroic feat of their short and colorful grid careers tomorrow afternoon when they try to bale out the great Crimson Tide of Alabama, fully aware of the fact that they have picked a tremendously potent team to meet as their first foe in the inner circle of college football's "Big Time."

Alabama, 41 strong, arrives in Washington at noon today, and the players will unlimber themselves at Griffith Stadium this afternoon in a dress rehearsal of tomorrow's great show, which has been rated as the one of the leading intersectional games in the country. The game tomorrow starts at 2:30 o'clock, with the promise of 20,000 spectators in the witness stands, a record football crowd for Washington in the past ten years.

Eleven of 1930 Champs On Squad.

In the burly Alabama team, probably the biggest football team in the country, will be eleven percherons who were part and parcel of the great 1930 combination which won the national championship by beating Washington State in the Rose Bowl game. They are John "Hurry" Cain, all-American full back; Hillman Holley, regular half back; Joe Bellini, reserve quarter back, who weighs only 134, but whom Coach Frank Thomas declares is, pound for pound, the best football player in America; Autry Dotherow, 202-pound regular end; Newton Godfree, Carney Lasile and Troy Barker, tackles; Bill Sanford, Comer Sims and Calvin Frey, guards, and Ellis Houston, center.

Tom Hupke and Bo Kirkland, gigantic guards, may supplant Sims and Frey in the opening lineup, while Willis Hewes, 210-pound center, probably will oust Houston from the job he held in 1930. Otherwise, the 1930 aces will make up the greater part of the first team. Hupke, by the way, is rated the best and most fearless punt blocker in the game.

What are G. W.'s chances against this bunch of fleet hippopotami? Washington's football minded were asking themselves yesterday. The consensus seemed to be that Alabama would win by three touchdowns, but would experience real difficulty in doing so, particularly if the tricky, crafty, dangerous game the Colonials have been stressing all week hits on all of its cylinders.

Johnnie Fenlon, fully recovered from the knee injury of early in the week, holds the fate of George Washington more in his hands than does any other of the locals. The bottle-legged little giant, who can hurl a football like Roy Spencer pegs a baseball, was responsible for a gain of 227 yards against Washington and Lee when 14 of his rifle aerials found the hands of his ends and backs.

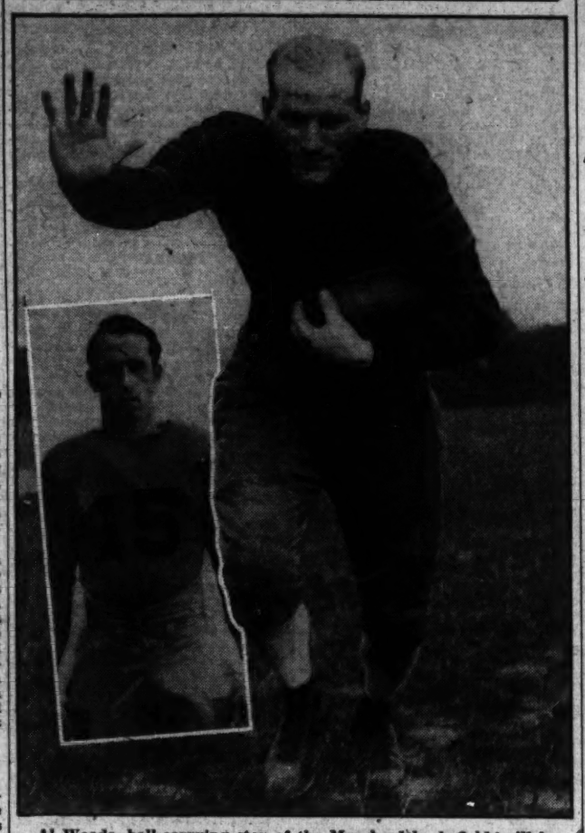
Colonial Coach Undecided As to Line-Up.

On the eve of battle, Coach Jim Pixlee is still undecided about his starting line-up. Hardy Pearce, 200-pound guard, is pressing Boyd Hickman for his place in the line, and "Nig" McCarver has all but clinched his place in the back field, where his speed of foot and ball snaring propensities are expected to succeed over Hank Strayer. Chris Doose, the reformed guard, played a while in Otts Kriemelmeyer's place at full back yesterday, as the team worked out against the freshmen, whose backs were called "Cain, Chappell, Moseley," &c.

One thousand Alabama students will convoy the Tide to Washington today, taking advantage of a spectacular $8 round trip rate from Tuscaloosa.

Scrambled old George Washington, with half its students once unaware that the institution maintained a football team, has gone footballbugs. Today, at 4:45 o'clock, the first general assembly in the history of the university will be held, an assembly which promises to mark the cleaving of G. W. from the ranks of minor league college athletic plants.

Maryland and V. P. I. Scoring Threats



Al Woods, ball-carrying star of the Maryland back field, will be opposed tomorrow by Al Casey (inset), V. P. I. quarter back, who scored the winning touchdown in the upset of Georgia last Saturday.

FINE CHICAGO TEAM HEADS FOR YALE

Best Stagg Eleven in Decade to Face Elis Tomorrow.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—A white-haired son of Yale headed eastward from Chicago tonight to direct his band of gridiron warriors in their football tussle with his alma mater's blue-jerseyed eleven.

It has been 34 years since Amos Alonzo Stagg came to New Haven to watch a Yale football team on its home gridiron. Then he came to root for his alma mater against Harvard. Saturday, however, he will sit across the field from the Yale cheering section with his University of Chicago eleven, the first he has brought to New Haven in his 41 years of coaching.

Chicago Has Best Team In Decade.

Stagg has collected for his invasion of his old stamping grounds a squad of 31 stalwarts that is considered his best in nearly a decade. His eleven, however, is expected to find the going rather tough, for to the Elis the game will mean an opportunity to atone for last Saturday's scoreless tie with Litle Bates.

Coach Mal Stevens, yet unborn when his rival coach of Saturday was making football and baseball history at Yale, has been driving the Elis hard all week. He has been especially concerned with finding a suitable substitute for Bob Lassiter, his rangy left half back, who was kept on the side lines last Saturday because of a knee injury.

Mrs. Nicolson Plays Mrs. Stewart Today

Rain yesterday forced postponement until this morning of the finals between Mrs. Hugh Nicolson, District titleholder, and Mrs. Charles B. Stewart, to decide the Washington Golf and Country Club championship. Play will start at 9:30 o'clock.

Mrs. C. K. Osborne and Mrs. W. F. Holtzman will meet this morning at Army and Navy Country Club in the finals of the women's championship.

MARYLAND U. AIR GAME PRIMED

V. P. I. Gridmen Who Beat Georgia to Face Old Liners.

LIKE the next war, the battle between Maryland and V. P. I. to be staged tomorrow afternoon at Byrd Stadium as the feature of Maryland's homecoming day is likely to be fought out in the air.

Stressing aerial plays galore, Maryland went through its last stiff workout yesterday and Coach Curley Byrd was more than pleased with the manner in which his backs and ends were holding on to the slippery ball. There will be no change in the Maryland line-up that lost to Virginia last week.

Dick Nelson, former Tech all-high star, is the hub of the Maryland passing attack. Rated the best passer ever developed by Hap Hardell, at Tech, Nelson, with the natural added weight of age, has made still more strides in the direction of perfection and today stands as the most graceful and accurate passer in the vicinity.

Likewise there will be no change in the V. P. I. line-up that turned in an amazing victory last week by beating Georgia.

V. P. I. is confident of turning the tables on Maryland and ruining its homecoming day, just as Maryland ruined V. P. I.'s homecoming day last year by administering the Gobblers a 20-0 defeat.

Unusual interest centers around the game. The V. P. I. alumni of Washington, will hold a rally and dinner tonight at the Racquet Club. They will be addressed by Henry Redd, head coach of the Blacksburg team.

Women's Midatlantic Entries Close Tomorrow

Outstanding feminine players from Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia will compete for the crown now worn by Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, of Columbia.

Dusek Victor In Odd Mat Finish

Head-On Collision of Foes Brings Defeat of Garibaldi.

Italian Counted Out After Fall to Pit at Auditorium.

WRESTLERS' heads have soft spots in them. This astounding biological discovery was made last night at the Washington Auditorium through the joint labors of Prof. Rudolph Dusek, D. T., and Prof. Gino T. Garibaldi, N. G., well known in bone-bending circles, who lent themselves to the experiment in whole-hearted fashion.

Climaxing one of the best rassling performances ever seen here Dusek and Garibaldi hurled themselves at each other for the last killing flying tackle. In midair their heads crashed with a report like the posterior concussions at a fraternity initiation. Both men, spent with the labors of an hour of first-rate wrestling, spun away and reeled drunkenly around the ring.

Dusek collapsed in a heap near the side of the ring, while Garibaldi, careening around the ring on wobbly legs, catapulted out of the ring and crashed to the bottom of the orchestra pit, six feet below. Several thousand fans, more excited than they have been in months of rassle-watching, jumped to their feet, their patronage divided. Some guy leaped on the ring siding and half dragged Dusek to a sitting position. Dusek went over to the middle of the ring and sat there.

Garibaldi Counted Out.

Referee Burns counted Garibaldi out. At the count of eight the beautifully built Italian tried to crawl out of the pit into the ring, but he crashed back once more and had to be carried to the dressing room. An unidentified woman was knocked down by the stagehands who carried Garibaldi off.

Still sitting in the middle of the ring, Dusek's shaggy arm was raised.

It was one of the roughest matches ever seen here. Garibaldi's fatal excursion to the orchestra pit was not his first. In fact, Dusek and he were out there once continuing their grand brawl in great style until the law intervened. Another time Garibaldi hurled Dusek over the ropes in the rear of the ring, causing Senator Pat Harrison to flee from his ringside seat.

There was a good deal of bloodletting, particularly on Garibaldi's part. The two held on to their holds with grim determination, whereas it is customary to release holds to keep the interest going. Garibaldi was the aggressor in the first half, while the last 30 minutes of the bout were about even. Washington's rassling fans might have seen one of those rare "shooting" matches.

Other results: Joe Stecher, former champion, scissored Dick Stahl in 11 minutes; Milo Steinborn bear-hugged Tony Felice, in 4 minutes; Abe Coleman tackled Ti-Ti-Tiger Nelson, in 10 minutes, while the contribution of Dick Daviscourt and George Vassell to the advancement of civilization was a bloody anthropoidic 30-minute draw.

Columbia Juniors In Second Round

Junior members of the Columbia Country Club will have their day in tournament play tomorrow morning, with the second round of the match play handicap tournament on tap.

While tight matches featured the opening round, there was no match in the tournament to equal the one between young George Flather and Bob Walser, who traveled 54 holes before the former triumphed.

Results of first-round matches:

Buddy Pope defeated Herbert Shannon, jr., 2 and 1; Charles Hawley defeated Earl Skinker, jr., 1 up; George Flather defeated Bob Walser, 1 up, 54 holes; Jack Barr defeated Bob Shelton, 3 and 2; Buddy Martin defeated Jack Bowie, jr., 1 up; David Walsh defeated Mike Gormley, jr., 1 up; Buddy Bowie defeated Marty West, jr., 2 and 1; Tom McLachlin defeated Solon Kemon, 1 up.

MARYLANDERS DRILL.

Maryland A. C. unlimited gridders will practice tonight at 8 o'clock at Seat Pleasant. All are requested to report promptly.

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

WIN, lose or tie in the Alabama game tomorrow, George Washington University will have the satisfaction of "arriving" in big league football circles.

The Buff and Blue, a term which not so long ago designated nothing particular in a sports sense, is beginning to take on something of a lustre with the ascendancy of George Washington in football. Time was when the Buff and Blue was about as important in the college football scheme as first down in an 80-to-0 game.

But with the entrance of Athletic Director Jim Pixlee into the policies of the downtown institution, backed by a sympathetic president in Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, George Washington reared a challenging head and is speedily taking the play away from rival local colleges, if, indeed, it has not already established itself in the forefront.

Attractive Schedule Arranged.

The first move of Pixlee was to shape attractive schedules for George Washington and for Washington football fans starved for the lack of high-grade contests, which were few and far between on the schedules of Georgetown and Maryland.

How well Pixlee succeeded is illustrated in the schedule of the Colonial eleven this year, which includes Washington and Lee, Alabama, Tulsa, Iowa, North Dakota State, William and Mary and Oklahoma, by far the most impressive and attractive list of games ever booked in a single season by any Washington college.

Pixlee's schedule marks the first appearance of such a highly rated Southern Conference team as Alabama in the Capital. It marks, too, in the appearance of Iowa the first time a member of the Big Ten group has been scheduled in the Capital. Its intersectional flavor is heightened by the games with the two Southwest colleges, Tulsa and Oklahoma, and with North Dakota State.

G. W. Shoving D. C. Rivals Into Background.

With undeniable certainty, George Washington is shoving Maryland and Georgetown into the background of the Washington football fans' desires. Georgetown's schedules of the past few years have steadily declined in point of attractiveness to home fans and Maryland has brought few of the better Southern Conference teams to College Park.

George Washington has put the artistic success of its Alabama game tomorrow ahead of the financial aspect. No seat has been priced over $1.50, and it is almost startling to learn that tickets for this type of game also may be bought for 50 and 75 cents.

Within the space of a few months, George Washington has gone big league in football. A completely outfitted 50-piece student band will take part in the pregame exercises. Griffith Stadium will be bedecked in the colors of the rival squads. The Colonials will be resplendent in their new red, white and blue uniforms. With a crowd of 20,000 seemingly assured, nothing has been left undone to guarantee the major league atmosphere, and there is even a suspicion that George Washington can win the game, to complete the metamorphosis of the Buff and Blue.

SAINTS WOULD PLAY.

St. Gabriel's Preps are seeking football games with teams in the 120-pound division. Call Manager Francis Brewer at Adams 3784 between 4 and 6 p. m.

Fans to Vote On Manager Of Nats

Post Conducts Ballot to Express Views on Vacancy.

Field Is Unrestricted; Many Notables Are Suggested.

WHO will manage the Nats?

Only Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Club, can answer that question, which arose the moment that Walter Johnson was given his release three days ago.

But The Post is giving the fans of Washington an opportunity to express their views on the subject in the accompanying ballot.

The ballot is no attempt to influence Washington Club officials in the appointment of the new manager, but The Post believes that the fans of the city have very definite ideas as to the qualifications of the available men, and are entitled to ballot on the subject.

Mail or Send Ballots To Sports Editor.

It is not a contest. There are no rules beyond checking off or inserting the name of the man the fan believes best fitted for the job and mailing or sending the ballot to the Sports Editor of The Post. No voter may mark more than one ballot.

The balloting will close next Friday at midnight and the final tabulation of the voting will be published in The Sunday Post of October 16.

There are no restrictions on the nominations. The names of Joe Judge, Sam Rice and Joe Cronin have been most frequently mentioned in connection with the berth, but any baseball man deemed fitted for the job, and available, may be named.

Many Notables Mentioned.

Besides the players on the Washington Club who may receive the appointment, such baseball notables as Rogers Hornsby, former manager of the Cubs; Dan Howley, former manager of the Reds; Donie Bush, who led the Minneapolis Club to the American Association, and Bucky Harris, not yet signed by the Tigers, have been suggested for the berth.

What is your view? If your favorite hasn't been named in the above group, you are at liberty to insert his name in the accompanying ballot. Your vote may hedp to appoint the man you want to see in the job.

Little Series Title Is Won by Newark

Minneapolis, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Newark's Bears won the fourteenth little world series today when its third baseman, Marvin Owen, hit a home run over the right-field fence in the ninth inning to defeat Minneapolis, 8 to 7, in the sixth game of the tourney. The victory gives the International League a tie with the American Association in the number of series each has won at seven all. Only 2,529 persons paid to see the final game.

Thomas, Nat Hurler, Has Arm Operation

Pitcher Alphonse (Tommy) Thomas, out of the Washington line-up for practically the last six weeks of the season just ended because of a sore arm, had an operation performed on his salary wing yesterday.

Dr. Kroeger, famous Chicago specialist, who also cured the flippers of Pitcher Urban Faber, of the White Sox, and Sam West, of the Nats, performed the operation in the Windy City. A telegram from Thomas last night stated that the operation was a success, there were no complications, and that he expected to do great things while in the box for the Nats next season.

V. M. I. Meets Army Grid Team Next Year

Lexington, Va., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Virginia Military Institute athletic authorities announced today that contract has been signed for a football game with Army at West Point on October 7, 1933.

McLarnin Is 2-1 Favorite In Leonard Bout Tonight

NEW YORK, October 6 (A.P.).—A clean, fresh page in the mottled history of the ring awaits a chapter tomorrow night to stand with the legends of the past, a chapter in the bold scrawl of brash young Jimmy McLarnin, or the neat, precise letter of old Benny Leonard.

No matter what happens in the ring at Madison Square Garden, no matter which way the tide of battle flows, the end of their 10-round match will be one for the book—perhaps a final bowing of the one-time unconquerable Leonard to youth, and the inroads of age, or the spectacular overthrow of the rarely humbled axiom that "they never come back."

Old-timers have their hopes for Leonard but they are somewhat forlorn hopes, despite the fact that Benny, struggling courageously up the comeback trail after his retirement, undefeated, over 8 years ago, has whipped a score of ordinary youngsters in the past 15 months. McLarnin is a 2-to-1 choice in the betting.

Leonard was a portly business man two years ago, his ring fortune apparently secure in real estate, part owner of the Pittsburgh franchise in the National Hockey League. The changed economic conditions swept him down. He knew but one way back, the ring.

Today he still scales slightly leeward of 150 pounds, a heavy welterweight, but his face is thin again with the thinness of perfect physical condition. His chest and arms are heavy with muscle, his legs strong and lively.

For years the baby-faced Vancouver dynamiter has been an uncrowned champion, first of the lightweights, then the welterweight division. He has been the particular scourge of the Jewish youngsters who came up on Benny's trail from the ghetto, each with the label "another Leonard." He knocked out Sid Terris, Al Singer and Ruby Goldstein, among these, along with a host of others.

CANRON OUTRUNS RISQUE BY HEAD IN LAUREL FEATURE

Outsider Gets Home First In Mud

Comes From Behind to Score Under McCoy's Ride.

Argonaute II Scores; Filter, Odds On, Takes Opener.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

CANRON, little brown daughter of Catalan and Rona, is a stout-hearted miss. She has proven just that on a number of occasions, and yesterday she gave another demonstration before some 5,000 turf fans at Laurel. Her fine effort brought victory in the Anne Arundel Purse, over the 6-furlong route.

After chasing Risque and Con Amore for half the distance, Canron and Jockey McCoy decided it was time to get in the race. It was a hard pull to catch those flying leaders in the heavy going, but Canron turned the trick. McCoy supplied the guiding and the whip and Canron had the courage and the speed. It was in the last strides that Canron slid past Risque to take the purse by a head margin. Two lengths behind came the laboring Con Amore. Canron rewarded her backers with a $9.70 mutuel.

Rain Leaves Track Sea Of Mud.

Wednesday night's rain left the track in the well-known sea-of-mud condition. Many horses were scratched and several owners tried in vain to have their charges taken out of action. However, clear weather returned early in the afternoon. Horsemen say the rebuilt track was improved by the downpour.

Filter showed a keen liking for the sloppy going in the opener, leading from barrier rise to the wire. Bejshak gave the odds-on favorite a rousing ride. Like the winner, the other money horses stayed just where they broke —Tabaku second and Half Saint third. The 6 furlongs were run in the good time of 1:14 2-5.

The English-bred Argonaute II, making his third start in this country, defeated the maiden jumpers seeking the Longwoods purse. Quick March, half of the favored Whitney entry, was second, with the third money going to Light Plume, a 100-1 shot, when Egad, which set most of the pace, lost Jockey C. Brooks at the last jump.

Argonaute II Wins Chase Handily.

Pat McGinnis had the mount on the winner and held Argonaute II well back until midway on the last turn, where the horse was 1zt go to move up and take a commanding lead.

The class of the horses and the slippery going resulted in five mishaps. Daniel Soot fell, Miss Henriette, Boundless Deep and Egad lost riders, while Sid was pulled up.

Enactment, of the Coe entry, scored an easy victory in the third race, leading Babee home by four lengths, with Fine Fibre an equal distance behind the place horse. Babee and Psyche fought it out for the pace-setting honor, with the former taking the lead, but the race was over on the far turn, where Bobby Jones brought the favorite around to complete the trip eased up.

Sweeping Light scored his first Maryland victory in the fourth race under a fine ride by H. Callahan. Sweeping Light was the favorite. Pencader, which drew the bulk of the play, was third, behind Unencumbered.

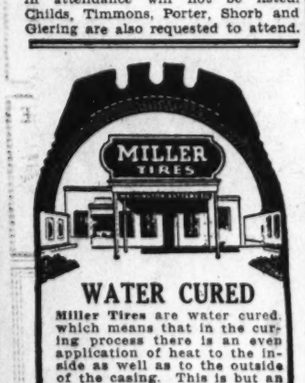
Dancing Mack Scores In Sixth.

Dancing Mack returned to best form to lead a field of platers home in the sixth. Zone, the favorite, took the place from Dea.

Village Vamp, a long shot, accounted for the finale, taking the lead on the far turn to win easily.

MARIONS MEET TONIGHT.

An important meeting of the Marion A. C. will be held tonight at 7 o'clock at 511 A street southeast, at which the team eligibility list for the city series will be drawn up. Players not in attendance will not be listed. Childs, Timmons, Porter, Shorb and Giering are also requested to attend.



WATER CURED

Miller Tires are water cured, which means that in the curing process there is an even application of heat to the inside as well as to the outside of the casing. This is but an extra precaution taken to insure a tire that will give thousands of miles of satisfactory service.

DEAR AL: LAUREL RACE TRACK.

Alabama's Football Team, which invades Washington today, has been honored with the naming of four races. The feature has been dubbed the Crimson Tide. Then there's the Tuscaloosa Steeplechase, the Hurry Cain Purse and the Hank Crisp Purse—the last two named for 'Bama stars.

T. Fred Moore, of New York, prominent lithographer and turf enthusiast, is taking his annual vacation at Laurel. Five of the seven winners today were recent campaigners on the New York tracks and Mr. Moore was beaming all afternoon in his clubhouse box. BILL.

FIRST RACE—Workman was unable to get racing room for DUCKLING in the stretch drive of that last race and the Whitney juvenile had t. be satisfied with fourth place. DUCKLING showed plenty of speed and may upset this group. LORD RAGLAND has been racing well and may be second. METAURUS for the show.

SECOND RACE—HUFFY is a great lover of the Laurel jumps. Has won here often. His last shows he is ready for a winning effort. LUCKITE, a scratch the other day, and should not be worse than second. ROYAL DOULTON appears third best.

THIRD RACE—BRIGHT BIRD takes off 4 pounds. Showed a fine wake-up effort at the Graw. Likes mud and may lead CAMP BOSS home at a good price. The latter has won two in a row. VISHNU for the show end.

FOURTH RACE—NOSE IN third by a length and a half to The Pelican the other day, gets my call in this. Was a fine effort and indicates a liking for the kind of going. The Coe entry of OLD BALDY and POMPELEON are a fine pair. LIQUEUR may like the shorter distance.

FIFTH RACE—GLASTONBURY has had a rest and has a habit o' coming back with a fine race. Won his last two at Saratoga on sloppy and muddy tracks. SEMAPHORE won here after a hard battle. DELICACY ran a fair race in a sprint yesterday from a slow start.

SIXTH RACE—ANUBIS looks like the class here off that race with Semaphore. RACCOON has beaten better than these. MERRY FOX for the show.

SEVENTH RACE—SYRIAC should win this. Last was a beaut. MONOCLE and FAIRDALE for the rest.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FILTER, $3.80, $2.80, $2.50; TABAKU, $5.20, $4.50; HALF SAINT, $18.40

FILTER, racing as if superior in the footing, went into command without effort and, moving into a commanding lead when entering the home stretch, held away thereafter. TABAKU, in nearest attendance of the winner, easily held the others safe. HALF SAINT was unable to improve his position under stout urging. VOLWOOD went along in the first division, but could never threaten the leaders. ALTUS NUBA was outrun. EN PASSANT went wide the entire trip. NEW SUN had no speed. RISNEUR broke very slow.

SECOND RACE—About two miles. Purse, $1,500. Longwoods Steeplechase. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 2:16. Off at 2:18½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ARGONAUTE II (entry), $6.80, $4.10, $3.50; QUICK MARCH (entry), $4.10, $3.70; LIGHT PLUME, $12.30.

ARGONAUTE II, restrained for the first mile while fencing cleverly, went into an easy lead going to the twelfth fence and drew out at will thereafter. QUICK MARSH raced FORAY into defeat early and fell back momentarily going to the eighth fence, was placed to pressure and proved best of the others in the final drive. LIGHT PLUME, badly outpaced for the first turn of the field, moved up stoutly going to the eleventh jump and came courageously in the late stages. MIRTON dropped far back early and passed tiring horses at the end. MELITA was outrun. FORAY tired badly after fencing well. AFLOAT was not persevered with when he stopped. EGAD lost rider at the final fence. BOUNDLESS DEEP had good speed to reach contention. He lost rider at the tenth fence. SID was pulled up at the ninth. MISS HENRIETTA lost rider at the sixth and DANIEL SOOT fell at the fourth jump.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 2-year-old fillies. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 2:50. Off at 2:52½. Winner, W. R. Coe's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ENACTMENT (W. R. Coe entry), $5.30, $2.90, $2.40; BABEE, $5.40, 14.50; FINE FIBRE, $7.20.

ENACTMENT, moving up fast to displace BABEE, sprinted into a winning lead and finished with much in reserve. BABEE, rushed hard to take command, saved ground but was no match for the winner when challenged. FINE FIBRE improved her position on the inside of PONCALO. Later entered contention when reaching the home stretch, but hung during the closing furlong. SUE JONES was done after a half mile. PERNICKETY was never a factor. SUGAR CAKE was outrun. PSYCHE did not fancy the going and was eased up in the last quarter mile.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:22. Off at 3:23. Winner, H. Fullitzer's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SWEEPING LIGHT, $5.20, $3.10, $2.10; UNEMCUMBERED, $3.70, $2.40; PENCADER, $2.10.

SWEEPING LIGHT, at home in the going and taking command going to the first turn, was given a breathing spell when leaving the back stretch, and drew out when mildly shaken up entering the home stretch. UNEMCUMBERED, following in closest pursuit of the winner, showed a good effort all the way. PENCADER, kept under stout pressure when settled on the back stretch, could not make up any ground in the final drive. ALL ROSES tired in the final furlong.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; allowances. The Anne Arundel. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:31. Off at 3:35½. Winner, W. W. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANRON, $9.70, $4.70, $2.60; RISQUE, $4.40, $2.70; CON AMORE, $2.30.

CANRON, permitted to race in hand for the first three furlongs, moved up on the outside approaching the home stretch, withstood a drive gamely and outfinished RISQUE in a hard drive. Latter, stoutly ridden to shake off CON AMORE, saved much ground and fought it out resolutely. CON AMORE, steadied in the early stages, weakened when placed to strong urging. DELICACY moved up fast entering the home stretch, but could not make up any ground thereafter.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:26. Off at 4:30½. Winner, A. G. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DANCING MACK, $11.20, $4.60, $4.40; ZONE, $3.20, $2.70; DEA, $3.60.

DANCING MACK, quick to get going, assumed command at the first turn, went under his own courage until midway of the final turn, and drew out smartly when shaken up. ZONE, kept on the inside while racing close up, was placed to punishment entering the home stretch, but could not keep pace with the winner. DEA slipped through on the inside when straightened into the home stretch and gained slowly. MEETING PLACE went evenly for most of the trip.

VILLAGE VAMP, slow to get going, secured racing room next the inner rail all down the back stretch, came around MARPLOT to take command and was in hand all during the stretch run. MARPLOT, rated in front, shook off early contention, but was not good enough to stay with the winner. FLYING MAX, well placed, was best of the others. MODERN TIMES could not improve her position. TOTEM was unable to threaten the leaders. STAR LASSIE, kept out in the firmer footing, showed a poor effort. PEACH BASKET had a rough trip.

Stocks Again Begin Climb With Wide Fractional Rises

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Stocks jogged along quietly today. Little disturbed by continued heaviness of wheat and other markets, trends shifted now and then, but leaders met support on moderate declines and the close was firm, with fractional gains fairly general. Chart followers noted that the market had refused to violate the mid-September resistance level, on the basis of averages, but felt it was perhaps too early to draw positive conclusions from this performance. Trading dropped to 1,945,102 shares.

Early offerings from weakened margin accounts were readily absorbed by covering and other buying, with the result that gains of a point or two were established in the morning. These held until early afternoon, when farm implement shares turned reactionary. However, this slack was taken up later, although the market was hardly animated on the recovery.

Case, which had been off more than 3, reduced its loss to about a point, while International Harvester cut a 2-point drop to a minor fraction. United States Steel, supported on a 1-point decline, firmed to close up ¾ net. There were similar gains for Bethlehem, Du Pont, Chrysler, United Aircraft, New York Central and North American.

Montgomery Ward closed unchanged, notwithstanding the improvement of 12.7 per cent in September business over August. American Telephone finished a shade higher. Santa Fe and Southern Pacific Railroads were off slightly. A number of preferred stocks softened, but they were largely inactives.

News items bearing on the state of trade were scarce.

BONDS DRIFT LOWER AS REALIZING WANES

Loss of Two-Tenths Is Made in Trading Volume of $8,838,000.

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—The bond market drifted irregularly lower today, although liquidating pressure relaxed and some signs of stabilization appeared throughout the list.

Trading volume again dropped considerably below normal with many investors standing on the side lines waiting for indications of a more definite trend. Sales totaled only $8,838,000, par value. The average for 60 corporate securities lost two-tenths of a point.

The second-grade rails and utilities were particularly soft, adding around a point or more to their losses of the previous session. Among these were some loans of Allegheny Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago & Northwestern, New York Central, Nickle Plate, Southern, Great Northern, Frisco, Boston & Maine, Denver & Rio Grande, Southern Pacific, International Telephone, Laclede Gas, Postal Telegraph, Detroit Edison and American Foreign Power.

Strength was shown by packing company bonds, the day's heaviest turnover being in Armour & Co. 4½s, which advanced 1¾ points. Morris & Co. 4½s rose a point.

United States Governments were slightly irregular. Although Liberty 3½s advanced fractionally to a new high for the year.

World Sugar Consumption Expected to Exceed Yield

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—The world's "sweet tooth," statisticians of the sugar industry observe, is now attracting considerable international economic attention.

One of the reasons is that this year for the first time in nearly half a decade consumption of sugar throughout the world may be somewhat greater than production. Production this year is estimated at about 28,278,000 long tons and consumption at 28,580,000 tons.

With the various crop curtailment agreements in operation, it is expected in some quarters that the world's total sugar crop for 1933 will show a further drop of more than 2,000,000 tons.

Sugar production, unlike that of other commodities, is not confined to any one country. The three continents of America, Europe, and Asia are producing at the present time about 7,500,000 tons each of the world's total supply, while the remainder is furnished by Africa and Australia.

Those who would make the nations more sugar-conscious estimate that the world now consumes about 21 pounds per capita. The per capita consumption in the United States is around 108 pounds, but Australia's demand for sweets is even greater with a per capita consumption of 117 pounds.

Most financial observers now are of the opinion that the sugar industry is slowly but surely emerging from the worst depression in its history. Prices have been steadily advancing since last June.

Loss on Alaska Railroad Cut Lowest in History

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Wilbur announced Col. Ohlson, general manager of Alaska Railroad, reported Government loss in operation of the road for the last fiscal year at $177,223, or 80 per cent lower than ever before in the history of the road. The Secretary said economies effected by Mr. Ohlson were largely responsible for this satisfactory showing, which was made despite the airplane and motor transport cut into passenger traffic between Seward and Fairbanks.

Every expenditure that could be spared was cut off during the year in the interest of economy.

WHEAT VALUES SINK TO NEW LOW LEVELS

Stop-Loss Selling Blamed as All Grains Decline; Provisions Rise.

Chicago, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—In a storm of stop-loss selling, all grains late today smashed low-price records for the season.

A sudden withdrawal of buying support in the Winnipeg wheat market tumbled October wheat contracts there to a point never before known. Cables reported Argentine and Australian wheat being offered in Europe at prices indicating keen competition with Canada from now on and apparently precluding any large overseas business in wheat from the United States.

Wheat in Chicago closed unsettled, 1⅛ to 1½ under yesterday's finish; corn, ½ to ⅞ down; oats, ¾ off, and provisions, unchanged to a rise of 2 cents.

Chicago Wheat Falls.

Almost as soon as trading began, Chicago wheat fell to minimum prices not touched before since July 26, but buying soon expanded enough to bring about a recovery to around yesterday's finish. Then selling pressure broadened and values gave way afresh, but only in a gradual manner until the dip at last enmeshed big quantities of standing orders to stop losses. The resulting emergency was intensified by sweeping contraction of demand, with Chicago wheat quotations dropping rapidly more than 2 cents a bushel.

It was clearly shown that the wheat market here had been overloaded with purchases recently made at prices much above today's level of values. Something of a rally was in progress, however, in the final transactions as a result of speculative profit taking. Among the day's unsettling developments was an official estimate that Argentine wheat acreage this season was 2,500,000 acres larger than last year.

Although current prices for corn and oats meant niggardly returns for grain on farms, all deliveries of both the feed grains outdid bottom quotations for many years back, and December oats sold at the lowest figures ever reached for that future. Action was mainly a result of wheat weakness.

Provisions were firm because of fair buying of lard.

Hosiery Industry Gains Heavily in September

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Earl Constantine, managing director of the National Association of Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturers, said today that in September the hosiery industry enjoyed one of the biggest months in its history on the volume of business signed up.

"Most of the mills are operating at full or near full capacity and their orders on hand will keep them thus occupied through November, and in many instances throughout December. With commodity prices going up slowly, but firmly, it is to be expected that prices of hosiery will similarly rise."

IMPROVEMENT SEEN IN MANUFACTURING

Capital Banking Company Buys Issue of Suburban Sanitary Bonds.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Manufacturing operations at last are begining to show gains in many sections of the United States, Lincoln National Bank announces in its Outline of Business for the current month. The quantity of goods produced in a number of lines of industry, it reminds, was larger in September and August than in July and June when output generally was the smallest ever recorded in comparison with potential capacity.

Employment increased slightly in August and to a larger degree in September as plants reopened and expanded operations, the bank's survey reveals. It finds that consumer demand began to rise following Labor Day and retail trade volume improved. Wholesale trade also increased ahead of retail demand and, during early September, was reported as moderately good.

Announcement was made yesterday that Y. E. Booker & Co., investment bankers, were successful bidders for the $200,000 5 per cent bonds of the Washington Suburban Sanitary District. In addition to being a direct obligation of the sanitary district, with the power to levy unlimited taxes on all taxable property therein, these bonds are also guaranteed as to principal and interest by both Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, Md., by indorsement on each bond. The area of the Washington Suburban Sanitary District, as created by the act of the General Assembly of Maryland, is approximately 98½ square miles, surrounding the District of Columbia on three sides.

Proceeds from the sale of this issue will be used for the extension of the water and sewerage systems within the district. In addition to Y. E. Booker & Co., bids for the issue were submitted by the Chase Harris Forbes Corporation, of New York, and the Mercantile Trust Co., Baltimore.

As reported by Waggaman, Brawner & Co.: "The bank statements appearing now reveal the interesting and unusual condition of an increase in resources, deposits and investments. Third quarter statements usually show a shrinkage in resources from June, but this year the opposite is true, and reflects the improvement in credit conditions."

At a recent meeting of the directors of Credit & Finance, Inc., the twentieth consecutive quarterly dividend was declared payable October 15, as per stock of record of October 1.

Texans and Georgians Confer on Cotton Prices

Atlanta, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—State Agriculture Commissioners of Texas and Georgia conferred here today on plans for obtaining uniform action throughout the cotton-growing States to enhance the price of the staple.

The commissioners, J. E. McDonald, of Texas, and Eugene Talmadge, of Georgia, the latter now governor-designate of this State, were leaders in the agitation for such action last year.

Flour Production Cut To 5,902,958 Barrels

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Flour production in all milling centers for September, as reported by General Mills, Inc., was 5,902,958 barrels, compared with 6,355,204 barrels in September, 1931.

For the three months ended September 30 output was 16,745,035 barrels compared with 20,156,951 barrels in the same period last year.

COTTON PRICES DROP AFTER EARLY RALLY

Result Stands 1 Point Higher to 3 Lower; December Closed at 6.99.

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Unfavorable weather reports were neutralized by uncertainty as to next Saturday's Government crop report and early advances were followed by reactions in cotton today, with December selling off from 7.14 to 6.94, closing at 6.99. The final tone was barely steady with prices net 1 point higher to 3 points lower.

There were some overnight selling orders in the market at the start, which came partly from the South, but after opening unchanged to 3 points lower prices stiffened up in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables and the weather news. March advanced to 7.30, or 13 to 17 points net higher on the general list. There was a later reaction, but enough scale-down buying developed to check declines of about 5 points from yesterday's finals and last prices showed rallies of 3 to 6 points from the lowest.

Liverpool cables said liquidation had been absorbed by covering in that market with business in cotton goods disappointing as buyers were disinclined to pay current prices. Exports today, 27,755, making 1,306,472 so far this season. Port receipts, 25,970. U. S. port stocks, 3,664,538.

SOUTH SEEN HOLDING TEXTILE MILL LEAD

Baltimore, October 6 (A.P.).—The Manufacturers Record says the South has reached such a dominant position in the textile field that during the year which closed July 31 Southern mills consumed more than 4,035,000 bales of cotton of a total consumption by all American mills of 4,966,000 bales.

And compared with 1931, the South showed a decrease of only 2 per cent in consumption while there was a decline in consumption in mills outside the South of 25 per cent.

Southern textile mills have been making better production records during the depression than other principal industries of the Nation, the Manufacturers Record says. The cotton manufacturing rate of operation has never been below 50 per cent and at times has been more than 90 per cent of capacity on a single shift basis.

The record says the South's textile supremacy has been augmented by establishment of some of the largest rayon plants in the world. Expansion of mills has been under at even during the three years of depression.

Approximately 1,750 individual textile plants are located in the Southern States. A total of 939 of the mills spin and weave cotton, 241 kind materials, 88 dye and finish goods, 50 manufacture rayon goods and 84 manufacture silk products.

Since 1925 the South has made a net gain in installed spindles of more than 1,500,000. A total of 74 per cent of the Nation's active spindles, which numbered 22,022,000 in August, is in the South. Nearly 85 per cent of all spindles installed in Southern mills were active at some time during that month.

The value of textile production of Southern mills was more than $965,000,000 in 1929 and they spent during that year more than $595,000,000 for materials, fuel and power. That figure does not include amounts spent for expansion and improvements of plants.

The textile business in the South rached the point that during the year closing in July, 82 per cent of domestic cotton consumption in textile mills was consumed by Southern plants.

Rubber Sole and Heel Plants Rush Production

The United States Rubber Co.'s sole and heel division, at Providence, R. I., which supplies leading shoe manufacturers and jobbers in all parts of the country, is now operating at capacity, with three eight-hour shifts of workers employed 24 hours a day.

This rate of production, necessitated by a steady flow of orders which began a month ago, is likely to continue indefinitely, company officials believe. They base their belief on the wide distribution of orders, in which they see both an immediate increase in seasonal shoe business and a prolonged spell of increased buying, resulting from the fact that shoes in general have worn to the point where they must be replaced.

Hitting the Headpin

UP on G street near Tenth, where a narrow building with a white front houses the Recreation alleys, the boys are beginning to whoop 'er up again. It was at Recreation that Joe Pricci smashed the world's set record last year, to lead a lengthy list of spectacular achievements. So many high marks were established last year it is practically impossible to set a new one.

Last night Joe Harrison rolled 170 in his final game for the Sol Herzog team, but failed to save the quintet from losing all three. Al Beavers rolled 119, 159 and 145 for a 423 set, while "Dutch" Neuman spilled the bottles for 138, 127, 152, a 417 total. None of the scores approached the records, however. Cook's Bakers had the pin boys punch-drunk setting pins. The doughboys hit the maple-ways for a 634 game and 1,831 total.

Anne Beyer was leading lady in the Inter-Sorority League at Columbia by virtue of her 106 game and 290 set. Kappa Phi Delta, with 463 and 1,349, garnered team honors.

Brown, of Recapture, not Harvard, was high in the I. C. C. Examiner's League at Columbia. His game was 143, his set, 356. Recapture peppered the pins for a 1,513 set and 544 game.

Dawson's 147 and Perry's 360 copped the individual honors in the Interior Department loop at Columbia. Land rolled 560 and 1,662 to top the teams.

With two new teams in line, the Intercollegiate League inaugurated its season last night. Oregon, one of the new quintets, white-washed Penn, the other newcomer. All other matches were decided by the odd game. Princeton's 536 and 1,510 led the teams. Fred Bamman, president of the loop, crayoned a 341 set, and Brownell furnished the high game of the evening, 141.

Six teams will roll in the Prince Georges County Church League, organized recently. The season will open tomorrow night at the Arcade Alleys, Hyattsville. The following matches are on the inaugural card: Riverdale Presbyterian vs. St. Jerdmes; Hyattsville Baptist vs. Hyattsville Baptist, No. 2; Hyattsville Methodist vs. Hyattsville Episcopal.

Bess Ackerman did herself proud in the Ladies Federal League at Arcadia, rolling 342 for high set, but Elsie Fischer took the game prize with 141. War's 1,822 and Veterans Administration's 550 were the best of the team scores.

PUBLIC'S DISREGARD OF SAFETY ASSAILED AS PERIL IN TRAFFIC

Education to Hazards Urged to Reduce Accident and Death Toll.

Assailing the indifference of the general public to safety on streets and highways, Sidney J. Williams, director of the public safety division of the National Safety Council, laid the threat of a toll of 50,000 traffic deaths within a few years before delegates to the twenty-first annual safety congress and exposition yesterday.

"The motor vehicle death rate per 100,000 population has steadily advanced with the increase in the use of motor vehicles," he said. "With any further increase in the number and use of motor vehicles, the number of deaths will continue to increase indefinitely, unless something is done about it."

This session and a meeting of the child education section, presided over by Dr. Frank W. Ballou, occupied the center of interest at the conference.

Education Head Speaks.

Principal addresses at the latter meeting were delivered by William John Cooper, United States commissioner of education, and George A. Hastings, extension director of President Hoover's conference on child health.

"The streets and other public highways," Commissioner Cooper said, "are cluttered with automobiles and electric street cars operated at high rates of speed.

Many persons lack intimate knowledge of the operation of these power vehicles and, consequently, do not fully realize the danger lurking in their path."

Mr. Hastings pointed out that while fatal automobile accidents have increased 106 per cent among adults since 1922, those among children have increased only 22.9 per cent, indicating the effectiveness of safety education.

Speaking before the power press section of the congress, J. A. Voss, safety director of the Republic Steel Corporation, of Youngstown, Ohio, said approximately 98 per cent of accidents in industry are due to indulgence in unsafe practices.

Many delegates of the street and highway traffic section attended the Eastern conference of motor vehicle administrators at the Hamilton Hotel. Delegates from twenty Eastern States, the District of Columbia and Canada were in attendance. William A. Van Duser, District director of traffic, represented Washington.

Congress Frolic Held.

The social event of the convention, the "Congress Frolic," was held last night in the gold room of Wardman Park Hotel. Entertainment was furnished by radio stars of the local broadcasting stations.

Supper was served to the delegates and guests at midnight, after which dancing was resumed.

The congress, which has been in session at the Wardman Park and Shoreham hotels since Monday, will adjourn today.

Boy Abandoned by Mother Becomes Ward of Police

Bobbie McGee Fails to Give Correct Address of Parent.

A pathetic little figure sat huddled in a chair in the Fourth Police Precinct Station last night. His clear blue eyes roamed about the room as his bewildered little mind attempted to comprehend the movements of a dozen policemen, busy attending to routine work.

He had been there half an hour. A telephone rang. The voice on the other end of the line reported there was no such address as 305 First street northeast. The voice added that "the kid must be mistaken."

The desk sergeant turned to the small boy.

"What did you say your name was, sonny?" he asked.

"Robert Francis McGee," the tike answered, pausing carefully after each name, 'and my daddy's name is Albert."

"Bobbie," as the boy was quickly nicknamed, had given the First street address as his home.

He told police he had been staying "somewhere in Maryland," and came to Washington yesterday to visit his parents. He said his mother took him to a movie last night, and left him alone to see the picture.

"My mother said she would give me a slip of paper with our address on it," the boy said, "but she forgot."

All he could remember was the First street address. He said his parents were visiting friends there.

At a late hour last night "Bobbie" was still in care of the Fourth Precinct personnel. He wore a cowboy outfit, a thin gray jacket, sandals, but no stockings.

Both his father and mother were out of work, "Bobbie" related, but his mother "managed to get him enough money to see the show."

The little fellow, who said he was 8 years old, soon accumulated a fist full of pennies, contributions of policemen at the station.

—And They Lived Happy Ever After

Parents Have Police Halt Wedding, but Later Give Consent.

Let's make this by O. Henry.

The title is "Cupid and the Cop."

Detective Sergeant A. D. Mansfield Tuesday apprehended an eloping couple from Richmond, Va., because parents sent a call to police here that the bride-to-be was but 18.

Mansfield located her and the bridegroom just as they went to see the preacher. They already had the license. The girl, Elsie Branch Sheppard, was escorted back to the Virginia capital by a relative.

Yesterday by long-distance Mansfield was apprised that the girl's parents had decided to permit the match. And Mansfield said, "Sure," when the bridegroom, Frank Richardson, 30, asked him to be best man at the ceremony here on Monday.

Suicide Verdict In Offley Death

Brother-in-Law of Marine Chief Took Own Life by Hanging.

A certificate of suicide was issued yesterday in the death of John M. Offley, 60, brother-in-law of Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, commandant of the Marine Corps, who was found strangled to death with a rope around his neck at the home of the Marine officer.

Offley was found by a Filipino house servant, a piece of hemp rope tied with a slip-knot around his neck.

Offley had been in ill health for a long time, police learned. He had undergone treatment in private sanitariums and at Walter Reed Hospital. He was not a former service man, it was said. The dead man is the brother of Mrs. Katharine Offley Fuller, wife of Gen. Fuller.

PLANKS OF G. O. P. DECLARED MENACE TO STATES' RIGHTS

Fulfillment of the Republican platform pledge "would still keep the long nose of the Federal Government in the business of States where it was not wanted," former Senator George B. Martin, of Kentucky, told a Democratic rally held last night in the headquarters of the District Democratic central committee at 1320 G street northwest.

"The Republican platform declaration on prohibition does not, even if we assume the pledge as good as carried out, does not give anything back to the States," the former senator said. "The Democratic party's declaration on prohibition, on the other hand, is a straightforward, unequivocal pledge and the party's candidates have been as straightforward."

Slump Blamed on Hoover.

Former Senator Robert L. Owen, of Oklahoma, charged the administration with full responsibility for the economic depression and said that President Hoover and Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills "could not evade their responsibility."

Harry P. Lawther, of Dallas, Tex., attacked Republican criticism of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, as a "radical." "The Republicans and Wall street say Gov. Roosevelt is a radical," Mr. Lawther said. "Well, President Jefferson was supposed to be a 'radical' and so was President Jackson and they made pretty good Presidents."

Mount Vernon Road Hit.

Napoleon Hill, magazine editor, criticized "extravagant Federal expenditures made at the very time the administration was promising to reduce Government costs." He cited the construction of the Mount Vernon boulevard at a cost of $470,000 a mile as an example. Henry Ford, he said, could have constructed the road for not more than $70,000 a mile.

A musical program was given by Eva Whitford Lovette and Mathilde Kolb.

Woman Is Found Dead In Gas-Filled Kitchen

Responding to a call from neighbors, police last night found Miss Hermine Bielfield, 48 years old, lifeless in a gas-filled kitchen of her home at 521 Oneida place northwest. She was seated in a chair, apparently having composed herself for the ordeal. All of the gas jets on the stove were open.

A sealed letter addressed to her sister, Miss Clara Bielfield, of Oak Park, Ill., was found by police. Dr. Aaron S. Schwartzman, of 519 Oglethorpe street northwest, pronounced the woman dead.

His Coat, Cash and Car Go in Speedway Holdup

While parked on the Speedway, near Seventeenth street northwest, last night, Neal Bladen, of 45 H street northeast, was held up by three young men and robbed of his new automobile, $18 in bills, $2 in silver and his topcoat, he reported to Third Precinct police.

Bladen told police that, after robbing him, the men ordered him to walk down the Speedway.

SHERBONDY EXHORTS YOUNG REPUBLICANS TO GET PARTY VOTES

Urged to Take Leading Part in November Election; Democrats Rapped.

An appeal to the Young Republican Club to attract to the Republican standard the 28,000,000 voters under 36 years of age was made last night by Donald Sherbondy, American University debating coach, at a rally held at the National Capital Republican Club.

"The votes of us young Republicans may be the deciding factor in this year's presidential campaign," he said. "Your puny vote can elect the next President of the United States for there are 28,000,000 of us while in 1928 President Hoover was elected by only 21,000,000.

Strength Is Stressed.

"We younger voters, without the aid of the remainder of the electorate could choose our own President. We have not comprehended our strength. The Constitution recognizes us as more than followers and gives us the right to be full-fledged leaders. Is it not right that we should assume our responsibilities?"

Gov. Roosevelt was berated for not taking a stand on the soldiers' bonus by Mr. Sherbondy, who said that the Democratic candidate was afraid to incur the antagonism of a "disgruntled little group of veterans."

Roosevelt Attacked.

He attacked Roosevelt for making capital out of human misery and said that the Republican party was one "of progress without confusion." The Democratic campaign was termed as radical and sectional.

The second speaker was George N. Dale, son of Senator Dale, of Vermont. He attacked the "pork barrel bill" of Speaker Garner and ridiculed "marble postoffices in rural communities" as typical of the "new deal" of the Democratic party.

Robert E. Lowe Heads Federal Employes Unit

Robert E. Lowe was elected president of the Veterans' Administrative Branch of the Federal Employes Union No. 2 of the National Federation of Federal Employes at a meeting last night. Miss Matilda Redeker was elected first vice president; Harry Taylor, second vice president; Mrs. Mary Coyne, third vice president; W. B. Uppercue, fourth vice president; Mrs. Albra E. Reising, recording secretary; Miss Ida E. Kemp, financial secretary, and Charles M. Stewart, sergeant at arms.

The branch went on record as favoring the authorizing the formation of a credit union and indorsed the legislative program of the national federation. John M. Cloud, national organizer, was the principal speaker.

TYPHUS WORKERS CARRY ON

Underwood & Underwood.

While Dr. R. E. Dyer is seriously ill with typhus fever contracted while seeking a cure for that plague fellow workers at the National Institute of Health carry on. Charles H. Knauff, technician, is pictured drawing blood from a rabbit for a test.

SCIENTISTS UTILIZE DR. DYER'S ILLNESS IN FIGHT ON TYPHUS

National Institute of Health Official Lets Test Fleas Feed on Him.

Although Dr. R. E. Dyer, assistant director of the National Institute of Health, is seriously ill at the Naval Hospital with typhus fever, his illness is being utilized by scientists who are carrying out the work on the dreaded plague begun by him.

They are allowing fleas to feed on his blood for an experiment which may save many lives in the future. Through his illness they have a chance to prove that the insects can transmit the disease to humans.

The fleas which have drunk his blood will be allowed to bite guinea pigs. If the guinea pigs contract the plague, science will have definite knowledge that the insects are able to transmit the disease to humans.

It is thought that Dr. Dyer was infected by a flea. Work which he was doing toward the development of a vaccine for the plague entailed the grinding up of the fleas for injections into test animals.

Already a vaccine has been developed which is partly successful in protecting guinea pigs from the disease and Dr. Dyer's work in trying for a preventive for humans will go on unhampered, in fact, aided by his illness.

Dr. Dyer has allowed fleas to feed on him before. In order to maintain a constant supply for his experiments, he carried at one time a colony strapped to his body in such a manner that they could drink his blood.
